

Ford Dampens Reagan Primary Drive

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

The heaviest presidential primary day in American history is over with President Ford holding off Ronald Reagan on what might have been a big Reagan day and Democratic front-runner Jimmy Carter increasing his delegate lead.

There were six primaries on Tuesday, three in Southern or border states and three in the far West, areas that are the cornerstone of Reagan's Sun Belt strategy.

But Ford managed a split in the popular vote, winning as expected in Oregon and beating Reagan by narrow margins in Tennessee and Kentucky. And while Reagan's bigger wins in Nevada, Idaho and Arkansas gave him a net gain of 20 delegates on the day, the President still leads, 779 delegates to 642 for Reagan in the race for the GOP presidential nomination.

Carter won Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee, but lost Oregon, considered the day's main event, to Sen. Frank Church. Church also won in his home state of Idaho. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. easily captured the Nevada primary.

But Carter, despite the mixed results, won a total of 136 delegates, combining those picked up in primaries with 28 more in district conventions in Missouri and two in an Alabama runoff. That puts the former Georgia governor past the halfway mark with 876 of the 1,505 delegates needed for the Democratic nomination.

Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, who picked up a scattered six delegates Tuesday, remains second with 298.5. There is also a bloc of 363.5 uncommitted votes.

Reagan had predicted he would win at least four of the six and it looked for a while like he might squeeze out a win in Tennessee to make his prediction good. Ford's margin was narrow through much of the evening, and Reagan pulled to within 123 votes with about 50 precincts left to report.

But those precincts were in the Knoxville area, where Ford had done well all night and when they were finally counted, the President had squeezed through to a 1,500-vote victory, although he lost the delegate race 22-21 because of weighting by Congressional districts.

Stuart Spencer, Ford's deputy campaign manager, said the President was happy with the results. "This is the night Reagan had to make a big comeback," Spencer said. "He didn't do it."

Reagan said he was pleased with his wins in Arkansas, Idaho and Nevada. He said of Kentucky and Tennessee, "I feel good doing as well as I did in these border states."

Church called the Oregon and Idaho wins "a quantum leap forward for my campaign." And he added: "The results tonight show people are taking a second look at Jimmy Carter."

But Carter emphasized his delegate harvest and that he has won half the primaries he has entered in May.

Udall, who won only six delegates Tuesday, said he was still in the race. "I won delegates in Arkansas and Kentucky," he said. "Mo Udall is a national candidate."

"Obviously I like to win," said Brown, a winner last week in Maryland, of the results in Oregon, where he was a write-in candidate. "But a write-in requires a commitment far greater than just punching a hole by the candidate's name."

Here are the returns from Tuesday's contests:

Oregon
With 73 per cent of the precincts counted:

Ford 86,241 or 52 per cent and 17 delegates.

Reagan 79,729 or 48 per cent and 13 delegates.

Among the Democrats:

Church 78,069 or 36 per cent and 15 delegates.

Carter 62,201 or 28 per cent and 12 delegates.

Brown 50,195 or 21 per cent and 7 delegates.

The rest were scattered.

Tennessee
With 99 per cent of the precincts reporting:

Ford 119,162 or 50 per cent and 21 delegates.
Reagan 117,641 or 49 per cent and 22 delegates.

On the Democratic side:
Carter 255,315 or 78 per cent and 36 delegates.

Wallace 36,169 or 11 per cent and one delegate.

The rest of the vote was split seven ways and nine uncommitted delegates were chosen.

Kentucky
With 99 per cent of the precincts counted:

Ford 67,658 or 51 per cent and 19 delegates.

Reagan 62,225 or 47 per cent and 18 delegates.

The rest was cast for a minor local candidate and on the uncommitted line.

STILL BURNING — Circleville Firemen, who lost a battle with a burning USS Chemical warehouse early Tuesday morning, returned periodically to the site of the Town St. building to keep the smoldering fire under control. Here, firemen Gene Dyke and Martin Garner work to dislodge the melted plastic components stored in the warehouse to get to the center of a hot spot. No cause has been listed in the blaze, which leveled the warehouse used to store finished plastic products. Unofficial estimates of $50,000 loss to the building and $150,000 loss to the contents can not be confirmed.

Residents Object To Rezoning Of Atwater Ave. Area

Approximately 50 persons attended a public rezoning hearing Tuesday in City Council chambers, most of them to object to rezoning a tract of land on Atwater Ave. from single family residential to a multiple family residential district.

The request to rezone the area has been made by Joseph Skilkin and Co., Builders, whose bid has been accepted by the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the construction of apartments for rental to low and middle income families.

Of six areas in Circleville surveyed by HUD officials, the tract of land along Atwater was the only one approved for the construction of the subsidized housing.

Robert Huffer, Circleville attorney, served as spokesman for the Skilkin firm. He outlined the plans for construction and answered questions from the objectors to the project.

Joseph Skilkin and Co. plan to construct a 60-family housing complex if the area is rezoned. It will include two bedroom, three bedroom and four bedroom apartments with rents ranging from $277 for the two bedroom apartments to over $320 for the four bedroom apartments.

Under the subsidized program, renters are required to pay at least 20 per cent of the rental and a maximum of 25 per cent of their salary must go for rent. The government subsidy for the balance of the rental fee is paid directly to the apartment complex owner.

The project is not designed for senior citizens but for working low and middle income families according to Huffer. Families on welfare would not be eligible to rent the apartments.

Councilman Steve Jones, 115 Park Street, voiced apparent oppositions to the project. "The present residents of the area have top priority in considering the rezoning," he contended. "They have worked and saved to build their homes."

Most of the objections to the proposed housing centered around the fact it is subsidized for low income families and the residents of the area felt it would bring an "undesirable element" to the community.

They also feared the apartment complex would not be maintained in a proper manner and would be allowed to quickly deteriorate.

In addition to supporting the objections of the residents of the area, Jones presented a petition containing 140 signatures to council. The petitions objected to the rezoning.

An ordinance to rezone will be presented to city council, probably at the June 1 meeting. Members of council will then either approve or vote against the rezoning. Members of council who attended the hearing gave no indication what their action would be.

Council members at the hearing were Jones, Tom Wells, Harold Hoffman, Dave Crawford, council president Joe Bell, Mayor Frank Barnhill.

In addition to Huffer, representatives of Joseph Skilkin Co. were Sidney Putschat and Denver Hague, architect.

President Campaigns In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — President Ford continued his blitz for this year's final election Triple Crown—the June 8 Ohio, California and New Jersey primaries—with a hectic campaign stop in Columbus today.

Meanwhile, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz was stumping Ohio in Ford's behalf for the farm vote.

And Mrs. Jimmy Carter, wife of the Democratic frontrunner, barnstormed the state, while Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., another aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination, wound up a two-day campaign swing.

Ford was to arrive in midafternoon and during the next six hours address a conference on aging, attend an outdoor rally, confer with Gov. James A. Rhodes and other state officials, hold a televised news conference, and meet with a group of Republican mayors.

Butz was to precede the President into the Capital City for an early afternoon address before the board of trustees of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and a news conference.

Rosalyn Carter planned to campaign outside a local factory and mingle with downtown workers on the Statehouse lawn before delivering a speech to a Columbus Democratic women's club.

Udall flew to Cleveland Tuesday night after appearing before the Ohio AFL-CIO convention in Cincinnati. Upon his arrival in Cleveland, Udall said was not surprised by his poor showing in Tuesday's primaries in Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas.

The Arizona congressman said he entered those primaries to "show the South and show the border states that I'm a national candidate who is willing to campaign in all regions of the country."

Earlier he told delegates to the AFL-CIO convention his record has been pro-labor and said they should disregard the notion that a conservative tide is sweeping the nation.

"The liberal program by and large has been a success," Udall said. The failures have been small and they have been few and by and large we've rooted them out."

Butz told a farm bureau audience in Findlay Tuesday night that the country's present farm programs won't work if the United States doesn't maintain an increase in agriculture exports.

He said the country now exports production from one out of four acres and the exports have assumed an importance to farmers unequalled in this country.

Mrs. Carter said in an interview in Dayton that attacks against her husband by former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox trained her for the presidential campaign.

"When Jimmy was governor of Georgia and Maddox was lieutenant governor, well, Maddox called him everything—a communist, just everything," she said.

"Well, I guess you could say that was good training for some of the attacks Jimmy gets now," she added.

R. Thoburn Blaney, a public health employee for over 22 years, submitted his letter of retirement to the Pickaway County Board of Health Tuesday.

His retirement will become effective June 30 under provisions of the State Public Employees' mandatory retirement law.

Landfill
Both the steering committee charged with finding a solution to the disposal of solid waste in the county, and personnel at the B & E Inc. landfill are "doing good jobs," according to the Board of Health.

Environmentalist Hugh Barnhill told the board that he sees "no problems" with the present condition of the landfill, the only means of disposing of solid waste in the county.

Filled portions of the landfill, located on Route 104 in Wayne Twp., have been covered with dirt, disced, and seeded with fescue; debris near the main buildings has been disposed of; rubbish is receiving its required daily cover; and most sections of the north slope have been repaired.

An engineer and geologist from the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency checked a leachate problem along the Ohio-Erie Canal, Barnhill said, but did not feel that the problem warranted any action.

To correct problems of blowing trash from rubbish haulers, the Board agreed to install a sign at the landfill to remind drivers to cover their loads.

They will also issue window stickers with 1976 trash haulers permits to allow law agencies to identify offenders. July is the renewal date for the permits.

The windshield stickers will allow better enforcement of littering laws, they felt. Licensed haulers who lose their loads are subject to revocation or suspension of the license. Private haulers are subject to punishment under Ohio's litter laws.

A study of possible landfill sites in the county is expected to be submitted to Pickaway County Commissioners by the steering committee, which is currently awaiting inspection reports on four or five legitimate sites.

The committee, under the direction of Mrs. Linda Stevenson, is scheduled to visit a transfer station in Newark and an incinerator operation in Dayton before making the final decision.

Board members, who were ordered by the Township Trustee Advisory Council to act only as a resource medium, commended the committee, especially Mrs. Stevenson, for their fine and exacting efforts.

ROUNDTOWN

THE Pickaway County Board of elections announced that it has absentee ballots for persons who will be out of the community on election day June 8...Persons wishing to use the ballots should go to the board of elections in the basement of the court house to cast their vote.

Weather

Mostly sunny today with a high in the upper 60s. Clear tonight with a low in the middle 40s. Sunny and warmer Thursday with a high in the middle 70s. Chances of precipitation, zero per cent today, tonight and Thursday. High Tuesday was 69 with a low during the night of 42.

Hargus Creek Cleanup

The Health Department will contact Circleville Solicitor John Adkins to ascertain the legality of forcing property owners to clean-up debris on the banks of Hargus Creek in the city.

Board members felt the task of changing peoples' minds about littering the creek and its bank would be a vast undertaking. But they also said the litter and debris were directly responsible for polluting the creek and creating a health hazard.

Influenza Program

Pickaway County will tentatively receive injector guns from the Ohio Department of Health September 13 through 19 for implementation of the monovalent serum designed to stop a suspected epidemic of New Jersey influenza.

The tentative date, which coincides with the second week of the 1976-77 school year, was not liked by Board members, who would have preferred to schedule the clinics later in the year.

It was not announced when the bivalent serum would be available for senior citizens.

The Department staff will meet June 2 with Greg Clapper southeast area

Teachers Said Liable For Injuries

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Students who suffer personal injuries because of a teacher's negligence can sue the teacher for money damages, the Ohio Supreme Court ruled today.

The court in a 6-1 decision ordered the Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court to hear the lawsuit of a student injured at Euclid Shore Junior High School in 1972. The trial court had dismissed the student's claim.

The case involved an injury suffered by Jandi Lyn Baird, who in December 1972 was injured in a gym class at the school.

Miss Baird claimed her teacher, Judith A. Hosmer, instructed her to perform exercises including jumping back and forth across a bench.

The student claimed the instructions amounted to negligence because the teacher provided an inappropriate object, a hard bench with sharp corners, and failed to put down a safety mat.

Miss Baird struck her knee on a corner of the bench and fell. She said surgery was required on her knee and that the knee was permanently disfigured.

The trial court dismissed the case. However, the 8th District Court of Appeals ruled the teacher was not entitled to governmental immunity from lawsuits for negligence. The Supreme Court decision affirms that ruling.

Justice J.J.P. Corrigan dissented from the opinion, but did not give an explanation of his opposition.

IN APPRECIATION — The Pickaway County Society for Crippled Children and adults presented Richard Plum a plaque for his many years as campaign chairman. Presenting the plaque is Mrs. Florence Mason, who was president of the society in 1966 when Plum first accepted the position. The Pickaway County Easter Seal Campaign in 1976 brought in a total of $10,377.58, passing its goal of $10,000 it was announced by Carolyn Daub, president, at the annual meeting held Tuesday at Wardell's Party Home.

Richard Plum, who has been campaign chairman since 1966 until the present year when Dick T. Tootle took over, was presented a plaque by Mrs. Florence Mason. Plum is a two term member of the Ohio Society for Crippled Children and Adults and is president elect of the Ohio Society.

"I have never seen a group so dedicated to attaining its goal," Plum said in accepting the plaque. "It has given me much enjoyment being associated with the group."

The person who coined the phrase "home sweet home" surely knew what it was all about because that's just how it has been for the past few days. I think we all long for time away from home every now and then but somehow when it is so forced upon us such as a hospitalization when home becomes a four letter word that spells happiness in capital letters.

Anyway my week at home has been good even if I did little else than sit or sleep. Today (Tuesday) I return to Berger Hospital for more tests and treatment. Eventually we will get on top of all the things that are giving me so many problems.

One of the truly happy moments during my brief home stay was helping granddaughter Monica celebrate her first birthday on Saturday. Her parents Marc and Debbie Easterday hosted the important family event along with some aid from aunts Becki and Amy Easterday and good friend sheryl Cox.

Family members who gathered for a buffet supper were Lee and Pat Bailey, Lisa Bailey, Laura Bailey, Ron "Bub" Woods, Kay Whiting, Lillian Thompson, Rita Thompson with sons Mark and Joey, Eloise Harris, Betty Harris and granddaughter "Munkin" Harris all from Grove City, J.M. and Irma Bailey from Columbus, Mike McCain from Huron, Edna Newhouse and Mary Alice Greenwood from Williamsport.

"Papall" Bill Easterday was present, too. Great aunt Kay Whiting baked and decorated the birthday cake that featured a large number one

(which was also cake). A very excited little girl enjoyed the many lovely gifts she received.

Another happy first birthday was celebrated by Roger Anthony Hamilton on Friday evening when his parents Roger and Jackie Hamilton and sisters Sherri and Shelley entertained with a cook out at their home. Guests were grandmother Hamilton, aunt Mavis Hamilton and her friend John Baker all from Wellston, Harry "Jr." and Loretta Keller and their Lana, the Wisecups — Gary, Sandy, Tracey and Brian, Mike and Carol Tarbill and Theresa Kathleen and Mike, Matthew Moss and Jeff Fullen.

The Hamilton family, by the way, reside in the David Snyder property in the Wright Addition having moved here from Wellston. He is associated with Deercreek Auto Parts.

Meanwhile at the Dave and Nancy Snyder abode at Woodlyn (which is a suburb of Williamsport) there has been a bit of excitement since young Jeff was taken ill and needed to be hospitalized at Ross County Medical Center for an appendectomy. He has been discharged to his home where he continues to recuperate.

Jeff's sister Stephanie is one of the pretty teen-agers who served on the 1975 Deercreek Dam Days court and who will represent our festival at the Adelphi Bologna festival this week end and at the Kingston Geranium festival on June 26.

Since the date was changed from fall to spring it was felt to be fair that both courts would officiate at various festivals this summer.

Surprise but most welcome callers in the home of Harry and Emma Puffinbarger last Tuesday were his cousins Tom and oather Noble of Chillicothe and Russell McDaniel of North Carolina.

On Sunday Noah and Mabel List had taken the Puffinbarger couple out to dinner at Washington Court House and then they enjoyed touring the surrounding countryside marveling at the wonders of spring and observing field work being done by the farmers.

Earlier in the day John and Minnie Steinhauer, as is a frequent custom, had brought "goodies" for Sunday breakfast. This was a week ago.

John and Norma Gillfillan (my sister and her hubby) of Piqua visited with us a week ago Sunday and so did my mama Mildred Hardman of Chillicothe and so did my Bobbey twin M.A. Greenwood, her son and daughter-in-law Ron and Terry Greenwood of Circleville.

One of the nice side effects of getting sick are the nice people who come to see you, send cards, bring lovely gifts, send beautiful flowers, do such thoughtful things, remember you in prayers and oh, so much more.

I am sincerely appreciative and grateful to all of you who have remembered me in so many wonderful ways. When I get my wits more together I will try to express my gratitude and that of my family.

Birthdays are such fun to write about and we have another one that was celebrated recently. This time it is Lea Greenwood who was a whole two years old and so to make happy memories of the big day grandma Greenwood ("Gigi") or Mary Alice as we grown-ups know her had a little party complete with cake, ice cream, gifts and games and of course, two candles to be given a big puff by Lea. Playmate Marie "Maggie" Galloway joined in all the fun.

Gertrude and Jesse Cook of Marysville, Dan Born of Clark's Lake were recent guests of A.J. and Juanita Cook and daughter Shana Wills. The Cooks always come to our town when the Westfall band concert is staged and this time it was a double celebration since A.J. and Juanita were having their thirteenth wedding anniversary. We wish them thrice thirteen and more anniversaries. What a fine couple to have as neighbors.

There are so many items I would like to write about but time is fleeting and I am supposed to be reporting to admitting office at the hospital so let me just remind you that with Memorial Day fast upon us to remember the newly opened Whitesed Greenhouse at the rear of 106 S. Main St. here in our town. They have just about any "greenery" you could want and as they say — if they don't have it they will get it for you.

One of these days, the good Lord willing, I will get all caught up. As I have asked before—just hang in with me until then. O.K.? Take care.

Think About: Nothing in the world should be more highly prized than the value of each day. (George Webster Douglas)

Parrot Smugglers In Big Time

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — What do you say to a naked Mexican swimming across the Rio Grande while pulling a raft full of parrots?

Customs agents told him he was under arrest — one more in a recent rash of parrot smugglers.

"Pound for pound there's more money in parrots than marijuana," says Senior Special Agent Duke Reeves of U.S. Customs.

Federal customs inspectors on the Mexican border are finding drunken parakeets concealed in car doors, under dashboards and even between the springs of rear seat back rests. Ingenious bird runners always have new hiding places.

Reeves says the birds are usually fed eye droppers full of whiskey, to keep them quiet (unlike humans, birds apparently aren't prone to singing while drunk), and carefully wrapped in stockings or other soft material to prevent feather damage during transportation.

A Scarlet Macaw that costs $150 south of the border brings $700 from American bird lovers. Double Yellowheads, Spectacled Amazons and Redheads can be purchased for $12 to $25 in Mexico and sold for $175 to $350 on the U.S. pet market.

Customs' biggest bird haul was made in 1973 when agents arrested a couple in Fabens, Tex., who had a plane load of 1,500 parrots valued at $177,000.

Most smugglers use cars and pickup trucks. Between October and December last year, customs men seized 677 parrots and arrested 22 smugglers at regular border crossing points in California and Texas.

The feathered contraband was either snuffed out by U.S. Customs dogs or given away by a tell-tale squawk from a hungover parrot that woke up at the wrong time, while an inspector was examining the vehicle.

Big or small, each smuggling case is treated seriously by federal authorities. Parrots are no laughing matter to the nation's $6 billion poultry industry because they can carry Exotic Newcastle Disease, which has repeatedly devastated flocks in the Southwest since 1970.

Eight Southern California counties suffered the worst epidemic of Newcastle in 1972. It led to the destruction of 12 million chickens and turkeys in an emergency eradication program that cost U.S. taxpayers $52 million.

Parrots can also infect humans with psittacosis, or parrot fever. Young children and elderly people are particularly susceptible to its flu-like symptoms, which can sometimes be fatal.

"The only way for these diseases to enter the United States is through imported birds that avoid quarantine," says Dr. Ralph Holte of the state Agriculture Department. "One parrot is enough to start a disastrous epidemic."

Legally imported birds have to go through a one-to-three-month quarantine at stations licensed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It is an expensive process that accounts for the big price markup between point of origin and pet store.

Fire Tests Reported

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some foamed plastic products that don't ignite when a match is held to them are flammable in the intense heat of a fire, says a researcher at Ohio State University.

Because of the properties of the plastics, manufacturers no longer label foamed plastic products as "self-extinguishing," Prof. Edwin E. Smith of Ohio State's chemical engineering department.

Smith says tests being conducted by his department should determine characteristics and qualities of the foamed plastics.

He said the studies will check the temperature at which plastic materials ignite and the amount of time it takes before the material becomes combustible.

"By clarifying these factors we hope to avoid the misuse and misinterpretation of laboratory tests," Smith said. "Foamed plastics use is increasing for padded seating and for building insulation as energy conservation efforts are stepped up."

Plastic products are being studied at the university under a grant from the Products Research Committee, representing the plastics industry and others.

Williamsport News

By EILEEN EASTERDAY, Phone 986-3481

The person who coined the phrase "home sweet home" surely knew what it was all about because that's just how it has been for the past few days. I think we all long for time away from home every now and then but somehow when it is so forced upon us such as a hospitalization when home becomes a four letter word that spells happiness in capital letters.

Anyway my week at home has been good even if I did little else than sit or sleep. Today (Tuesday) I return to Berger Hospital for more tests and treatment. Eventually we will get on top of all the things that are giving me so many problems.

A Page Of Opinion

Red Entrepreneurs

One of the problems the totalitarian state frequently has, and almost always is unable to eradicate, is what the rulers refer to as the black market. It is not so much a black market in the western sense as it is an exercise of free market forces in a climate hostile to individual initiative.

Private enterprise exists in the Soviet Union, China, Vietnam and all the other communist states. This decidedly anti-Marxist undercurrent of trade and commerce is even tolerated in some communist states as a means of keeping the peasants happy.

It exists because state-operated industries and state-controlled labor are notoriously inefficient in producing the products and services the consumer demands. The farm commune worker who maintains his own small vegetable plot on the side serves a valuable purpose the Marxist state cannot recognize publicly but also cannot afford to stop.

In the Soviet Union, and perhaps in the other communist states as well, an unofficial economy parallel to the state monopoly operates to supply consumer needs for a profit. The entrepreneurs who operate within the unofficial economy exist because they are successful. To the commissars in charge of commercial planning, that is the most galling point of all.

Hazardous Habit

By JIM BISHOP

No one likes to admit a weakness. The alcoholic insists that he can "take it or leave it," though he prefers to take it. The gambler aspires to "one big killing" before he quits. The skirt-chaser, who humiliates women, insists that he is looking for a lady like his mother.

Men, as a gender, are poor liars. I like to think of myself as a stubborn Mick. My daughters insist that I am loudest just before I surrender. One dwells briefly on cutting all of them out of the will.

And yet I have a perennial weakness. Cigarettes. They are as much a part of my face as the big nose and the baby blue eyes. It is easy to quit smoking. I have done it twice a week since the Surgeon General warned that "smoking is hazardous to your health."

A love-hate relationship between men and cigarettes has been going on since I was 15. At that time I smoked in the bathroom and blew it out the window.

Looking back, I think I bought my first pack of Melachros because, like long pants, it represented a jump toward adulthood. Smoking made me a man. Inhaling induced several convulsions, but I kept trying.

My old man was a cigar chomper. He lit them and slid them under his nose like a submarine under an iceberg. He also chewed them unlit. "Be a man," he said. "Smoke a cigar."

The inference was that cigarettes are effeminate. I smoked Lords Salisbury and Old Golds, Luckies, even Twenty Grand — the Depression cigarette.

Long before the government began to scare us with the prospects of cancer, emphysema and cardiovascular diseases, I knew that smoking made an ashtray of my throat. My tongue felt like a retreaded tire.

The more I worried about smoking, the more I smoked. When I married

Kelly — 15 years ago — I married a smoker. The stubborn was wed to the stubborn. When this most ladylike of creatures inhaled, she opened her mouth and drew the smoke down to her heels. She had smoky feet.

We fed on each other's addiction. Some medical authorities insist that cigarettes are "habituating." Untrue. They are addictive, which equates them with narcotics.

In our nervousness and fear, we moved downward to cigarettes which are relatively safe. Four years ago, the Bishops began to puff on Carleton menthols. Assuming that tar is a carcinogen, our brand had only 2 milligrams per butt, as opposed to an average of 15 for other brands.

For awhile, Kelly and I had to keep the lights on to make sure we were smoking. The weaker the cigarette, the more we smoked. It was akin to inhaling warm air.

She moved up to three packs a day. For me, four. We quit again and again, and sat at the dining room table wringing our hands. Always, I broke first. I quit quitting. She was glad to follow me down the road to perdition.

Kelly's favorite phrase became; "You made me do it." Recently, we had Dr. Lester Keiser to dinner. It is pointless to invite a prominent psychiatrist for a freebie unless you can tap him for advice.

We joked about our low-tar cigarettes. "Bill Armstrong says it's not smoking," we trilled. "It merely turns your breath gray." A lady in Scotland tried one and refused a second. "No thanks," she murmured, "I'd rather smoke."

Keiser was not impressed. "If you both have the motivation to quit," he said, "why not try hypnosis?" Why not indeed. The doctor checked a list of names and came up with Rachel Copelan.

We made an appointment and smoked all the way to her office. She turned out to be a lovely, sympathetic person who placed us in huge leather chairs, made us close our eyes, and recited the countless evils of smoking for 55 minutes.

Her power, I found, was in "suggesting" that we give up the weed. I did not feel hypnotized; every word she said was clear. After two treatments, Kelly was down to two packs; I was puffing two-and-a-half.

Kelly asked if my butt tasted like a burning tire. I said I never smoked a tire. I placed the cigarettes as far from me as the house will permit. In a week, I was down to two packs; Kelly nursed a pack-and-a-half.

I reported to a hospital for a chest X-ray. I was a shuddering coward. Doomed. "The lung area is clear," Dr. Keiser intoned.

When I got home, I crowed. "I don't know about you," I said, "But I'm healthy." With confidence, I smoked four packs of cigarettes...

H-Bombs Ills Treated

CLEVELAND (AP) — Three persons from the Marshall Islands have been admitted to Cleveland Metropolitan General Hospital to undergo surgery this week to remove thyroid tumors linked to hydrogen bomb fallout during testing 22 years ago.

Dr. Brown M. Dobys, professor of surgery at the Case Western Reserve University School of Medicine, said two women, ages 57 and 37, and a 37-year-old man are the latest of 22 Marshall Islanders who will have been operated on here for thyroid tumors.

He said five of them had cancer and several others were thought to have cancer, although laboratory tests were borderline.

Dr. Dobys has made five trips to the Marshall Islands, along with other specialists, to examine patients. He said island residents picked up radioactive iodine in drinking water which is caught from roof runoffs.

While the first steamboat went down the Ohio River in 1811, it was not until after 1815 that the steamers began to move upstream.

"Bad news -- we have a leak in the basement."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I consider myself a social drinker. I do wake up with a pretty good hangover that sometimes ruins the day's work. Each one of my friends has his own way of preventing hangovers. Do you have a good one? Mr. R.L.O., Ohio

Dear Mr. O.:

There is, of course, a simple rule: If you don't want a hangover don't drink alcohol.

It must be recognized that the threshold of tolerance for alcohol varies from person to person. It also varies from time to time depending, for example, on whether one drinks on an empty or full stomach.

These thresholds are quickly learned by people who are truly "social drinkers." Consequently, hangovers rarely occur to them. And they are not in competition with their friends.

"Social drinkers," and you call yourself one, should sometimes re-evaluate their patterns of drinking. Far too often hard core alcoholics shield themselves by this misnomer.

Alcoholism is a subtle disease that flourishes almost before one is aware of its presence. True social drinkers rarely have hangovers. They know their limitations and adhere to them. These responsible social drinkers will never drive a car when they have exceeded their level of tolerance. The diminished reflexes that follow even "social drinking" make the automobile a lethal weapon for the destruction of the driver and for those unfortunate who cross his path.

Another aspect of hangovers that deserves consideration is the person who is truly allergic to certain mixtures of alcohol. It is an accepted fact that impurities, or "cogeners," can cause toxic reactions, and a hangover is a toxic reaction.

The teenager and the young adult, unfortunately, have, in recent years, been indulging in alcohol and excess drinking. The desire to "keep up with" the drinking habits of classmates and friends has made alcohol a distinct threat to the destiny of this younger generation.

Parents and educators must combine their forces and talents to reorienting young people if the social drinker is not to expand into the chronic alcoholic. The strictest possible rules must be established if the catastrophe caused by automobile accidents is ever to be reduced and eliminated.

I vividly recall the heartache of a family whose 17-year-old boy had just recovered from intricate open heart surgery. Four days later he was killed when the family car was struck by a group of "social drinking" teenagers.

The hangover of unhappiness of this family will last as long as they live.

Dear Editor:

We, the seniors of Pickaway-Ross Joint Vocational Center, would like to expand on the subject discussed in your column previously. Everything discussed before is correct but the matter is much more serious than presented. We, the seniors of '76', know that nothing can be done this year, but we would like to see it changed for the juniors and seniors of the 1976-1977 school year.

No students from the vocational center were invited to the awards assembly at Circleville High School which was held last week at the high school. There are some honor graduates at the vocational center that have not received their honor cords from Circleville High School.

In our senior instruction papers it stated that we must attend all commencement practices unless personally excused by the principal. But we have now found that the seniors from the vocational school will attend only two of the practices, while the remaining seniors at the high school will be attending all four practices. When trying to locate the reason for this, the high school administration put the blame on the vocational center administration. Checking into this we found that we were allowed as many early dismissals as "requested by" the home school for commencement practices.

These are only a few of the many instances that have occurred throughout the school year. We feel excluded from many school functions. Much to our dismay nothing constructive has been done to correct the situations.

Dear Editor:

This letter is of concern to all the people of Circleville.

I wonder how many know where the military or soldier's plot is in Forest Cemetery. It's a nice place to look over and see a lot of history. Some goes back to the 1800s.

I know of at least one low down person or persons that knows. It's the one who stole the flowers from the urns at the foot of the hill in the older section of the soldier's plot. How low can a human get? Between the two urns is a large stone which reads: "The war is over. Victory is yours. Rest Comrades."

What kind of a person can steal from these men lying there who helped us keep what freedom we have.

We took it on our own to clean the head stones, help Mr. Sims and his crew mow the grass. I think we have made the older section look a little better.

I know a lot of people would like to help, but knew nothing of this. It's not hard work, but time consuming. We have cleaned over 40 stones but time is running out.

If anyone is willing to give a hand, just bring rubber gloves, rags, bleach and a good elbow. If interested call 474-6587 any evening and we will gladly help. We will be there Saturday from 9 to 4.

I think dogs, bicycles, mini bikes and kids playing in the cemetery should be banned. I would like to give Mr. Nolan Sims and his crew a big pat on the back for a fine job they are doing.

Brown Sets Ohio Visit

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who is not a candidate in the Ohio primary, has tentatively scheduled a campaign appearance next week in that state and brushed aside questions about the visit as "irrelevant."

Brown's campaign office announced Tuesday that the Democratic presidential hopeful will campaign in Columbus, Ohio, next Tuesday while flying back to Los Angeles from Rhode Island and New York.

Brown has filed no delegate slates in Ohio's June 8 primary election, and state law does not allow write-in presidential candidates. The one uncommitted slate running statewide vowed last week it would remain uncommitted and not adopt the banner of any candidate.

Brown's campaign staff said they did not know why the visit was scheduled. Asked personally while in San Francisco for the reason for the visit, Brown replied, "That has to rank as a new low in journalistic irrelevance."

They'll Do It Every Time

A Page Of Opinion

Red Entrepreneurs

One of the problems the totalitarian state frequently has, and almost always is unable to eradicate, is what the rulers refer to as the black market. It is not so much a black market in the western sense as it is an exercise of free market forces in a climate hostile to individual initiative.

Private enterprise exists in the Soviet Union, China, Vietnam and all the other communist states. This decidedly anti-Marxist undercurrent of trade and commerce is even tolerated in some communist states as a means of keeping the peasants happy.

It exists because state-operated industries and state-controlled labor are notoriously inefficient in producing the products and services the consumer demands. The farm commune worker who maintains his own small vegetable plot on the side serves a valuable purpose the Marxist state cannot recognize publicly but also cannot afford to stop.

In the Soviet Union, and perhaps in the other communist states as well, an unofficial economy parallel to the state monopoly operates to supply consumer needs for a profit. The entrepreneurs who operate within the unofficial economy exist because they are successful. To the commissars in charge of commercial planning, that is the most galling point of all.

Hazardous Habit

By JIM BISHOP

No one likes to admit a weakness. The alcoholic insists that he can "take it or leave it," though he prefers to take it. The gambler aspires to "one big killing" before he quits. The skirt-chaser, who humiliates women, insists that he is looking for a lady like his mother.

Men, as a gender, are poor liars. I like to think of myself as a stubborn Mick. My daughters insist that I am loudest just before I surrender. One dwells briefly on cutting all of them out of the will.

And yet I have a perennial weakness. Cigarettes. They are as much a part of my face as the big nose and the baby blue eyes. It is easy to quit smoking. I have done it twice a week since the Surgeon General warned that "smoking is hazardous to your health."

A love-hate relationship between men and cigarettes has been going on since I was 15. At that time I smoked in the bathroom and blew it out the window. Looking back, I think I bought my first pack of Melachinos because, like long pants, it represented a jump toward adulthood. Smoking made me a man. Inhaling induced several convulsions, but I kept trying.

My old man was a cigar chomper. He lit them and slid them under his nose like a submarine under an iceberg. He also chewed them unlit. "Be a man," he said. "Smoke a cigar."

The inference was that cigarettes are effeminate. I smoked Lords Salisburys and Old Golds, Luckies, even Twenty Grand — the Depression cigarette.

Long before the government began to scare us with the prospects of cancer, emphysema and cardiovascular diseases, I knew that smoking made an ashtray of my throat. My tongue felt like a retreaded tire.

The more I worried about smoking, the more I smoked. When I married

Kelly — 15 years ago — I married a smoker. The stubborn was wed to the stubborn. When this most ladylike of creatures inhaled, she opened her mouth and drew the smoke down to her heels. She had smoky feet.

We fed on each other's addiction. Some medical authorities insist that cigarettes are "habituating." Untrue. They are addictive, which equates them with narcotics.

In our nervousness and fear, we moved downward to cigarettes which are relatively safe. Four years ago, the Bishops began to puff on Carleton menthols. Assuming that tar is a carcinogen, our brand had only 2 milligrams per butt, as opposed to an average of 15 for other brands.

For awhile, Kelly and I had to keep the lights on to make sure we were smoking. The weaker the cigarette, the more we smoked. It was akin to inhaling warm air.

She moved up to three packs a day. For me, four. We quit again and again, and sat at the dining room table wringing our hands. Always, I broke first. I quit quitting. She was glad to follow me down the road to perdition.

Kelly's favorite phrase became; "You made me do it." Recently, we had Dr. Lester Keiser to dinner. It is pointless to invite a prominent psychiatrist for a freebie unless you can tap him for advice.

We joked about our low-tar cigarettes. "Bill Armstrong says it's not smoking," we trilled. "It merely turns your breath gray." A lady in Scotland tried one and refused a second. "No thanks," she murmured, "I'd rather smoke."

Keiser was not impressed. "If you both have the motivation to quit," he said, "why not try hypnosis?" Why not indeed. The doctor checked a list of names and came up with Rachel Copelan.

We made an appointment and smoked all the way to her office. She turned out to be a lovely, sympathetic person who placed us in huge leather chairs, made us close our eyes, and recited the countless evils of smoking for 55 minutes.

Her power, I found, was in "suggesting" that we give up the weed. I did not feel hypnotized; every word she said was clear. After two treatments, Kelly was down to two packs; I was puffing two-and-a-half.

Kelly asked if my butt tasted like a burning tire. I said I never smoked a tire. I placed the cigarettes as far from me as the house will permit. In a week, I was down to two packs; Kelly nursed a pack-and-a-half.

I reported to a hospital for a chest X-ray. I was a shuddering coward. Doomed. "The lung area is clear," Dr. Keiser intoned.

When I got home, I crowed. "I don't know about you," I said, "but I'm healthy." With confidence, I smoked four packs of cigarettes...

H-Bombs Ills Treated

CLEVELAND (AP) — Three persons from the Marshall Islands have been admitted to Cleveland Metropolitan General Hospital to undergo surgery this week to remove thyroid tumors linked to hydrogen bomb fallout during testing 22 years ago.

Dr. Brown M. Dobys, professor of surgery at the Case Western Reserve University School of Medicine, said two women, ages 57 and 37, and a 37-year-old man are the latest of 22 Marshall Islanders who will have been operated on here for thyroid tumors.

He said five of them had cancer and several others were thought to have cancer, although laboratory tests were borderline.

Dr. Dobys has made five trips to the Marshall Islands, along with other specialists, to examine patients. He said island residents picked up radioactive iodine in drinking water which is caught from roof runoffs.

Don't Let Lips Decide Feelings

DEAR ABBY: I must take exception to your statement: "The mouth is an erogenous zone, reserved for one's lover-or-for mouth-to-mouth resuscitation."

The mouth is an erogenous zone ONLY if one wants it to be. Otherwise it has no more emotion than the back of your hand. My family is not what might be called a family of kissers. However, I've kissed my sisters, father, mother and even my daughters on the mouth, and none of us ever regarded it as anything other than a warm greeting, which was the way it was intended.

Now, I have kissed many girls (and of course my wife) on the mouth when I had amorous intentions and found that they can respond as they feel. It has nothing to do with the "lip contact"-only the intentions of the two parties, which must be mutual and simultaneous.

I trust that you will give this further thought and agree with my view.

KISSIN' PHIL
DEAR PHIL: A kiss is just a kiss, unless it is other wise intended. But the erogenous zone is a dangerous place to decide which is which.

DEAR ABBY: My father says that I have to ask you what you think the punishment should be for the crime I committed. I stole money from my parents.

So whatever you say, I will have to do. I am 12 years old.

Frank Church Zeroes In On State

CLEVELAND (AP) — His personal history reads like dramatic fiction. A college freshman in 1942, Frank Church dropped out to enlist in the Army as a private and won a field commission two years later.

Returning to college, he graduated Phi Beta Kappa and enrolled in Harvard Law School only to fall ill to what was diagnosed as terminal cancer.

Cured by X-ray treatments, he finished law school and returned to his native Idaho. He entered politics and at age 32 was elected a United States senator.

Now, at age 51, Church is making his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, and Ohio is one of his target primary states. He began his Ohio campaign in Cleveland shortly after winning the Nebraska primary, his first primary election.

Church has been prominent lately as chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, which has probed covert activities by the Central Intelligence Agency and the FBI. He has authored legislation creating a congressional intelligence oversight committee that would be given prior notification of covert operations.

Church has rejected suggestions that his committee's investigation has crippled the intelligence committee, saying that it was needed to restore public confidence.

He says he recognizes the need for covert operations, but he opposes any U.S. interference with the political processes of foreign, democratically elected governments.

On economic issues, Church says unemployment can be reduced to less than three per cent by policies that would put a stop to "the hemorrhage of capital that is now flowing to foreign countries" and to "too much federal regulation of business."

He says current tax laws provide incentives for investment abroad and cost the United States 150,000 jobs a year. Rewriting those laws would solve capital shortages, stimulating private investment and thus employment, Church says.

He says dismantling some of the federal regulatory agencies would encourage competition, which in turn would provide more jobs.

Church once sponsored a bill to dismantle the Interstate Commerce Commission, and cites the Federal Aviation Administration as another agency could be at least partially dismantled.

He has urged elimination of "obstacles to competition" by rewriting tax and bankruptcy laws, but says he opposes deregulation of natural gas except in the case of small, independent producers.

While jobs are being created in the private sector, he says, the government should serve as an employer of last resort, providing a job for everyone who wants to work but can't find employment in the private sector.

Church argues that government spending is inflationary only if the economy is operating near full capacity.

"Current deficits are having little inflationary impact," he says. He contends an economic recovery in which both unemployment and inflation are reduced to less than three per cent would provide "sufficient revenues to balance the budget at something close to the present level of spending."

In taxes, Church says he favors an increased minimum tax for the wealthy along with "a further reduction in individual taxes" for the average taxpayer. He has called for elimination of "tax havens that tend to favor foreign earnings," and claims elimination of such havens "would bring in somewhere between $2 billion and $3 billion annually."

In energy policy, Church has sponsored legislation for development of alternative sources, such as geothermal and solar. Despite concerns about nuclear energy, he says "it has to remain a part of the mixture of energy sources."

Church says he has doubts about the efficacy of school busing for racial integration, saying it may be resulting in less integration and poorer education, but insists that "when it comes to forced busing, the court orders must be respected and enforced."

Church supports gradual enactment of a national health insurance plan, beginning with catastrophic illness coverage for everyone and full coverage of the elderly.

He supports the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion, but also is author of the so-called "conscience amendment" which prevents the federal government from requiring church-affiliated hospitals to perform abortions.

He opposes all forms of federal gun control, saying "This is a field that should be reserved to regulation by state and local governments. Each state should be free to deal with its own crime problem in its own way."

In foreign policy, Church says he favors expanded trade as a means of normalizing relations between the United States and the Soviet Union. He says the first priority in U.S. dealings with the Soviets should be nuclear arms limitations, and says arms negotiations should continue regardless of Soviet moves in Africa.

"There are matters of overriding concern that we have to place at a higher level than (Soviet) adventurism in places like Angola," Church says.

In the Middle East, Church is a consistent and strong supporter of U.S. aid to Israel and was one of five original signers of a letter requesting the Ford administration to supply Israel with whatever material and financial support is necessary.

He says he favors economic aid to Egypt and Syria. "I would sell food to the Arabs; I would just stop selling guns," he says.

asked at what time our wedding was scheduled. I told her 2 P.M. Then she told me that HER daughter was being married the same day at 5 P.M. and asked if she could use our flowers.

I didn't know what to say, so I said yes.

When I told my husband, he said I should have told her if she wanted to use our flowers, she should pay half the florist bill. They are just about as well off financially as we are.

Now my husband wants me to ring the lady up and make that suggestion, but I haven't the nerve.

Please help me.

WASN'T THINKING
DEAR WASN'T: The time to have made the suggestion was when she asked to use your flowers. Although it would be rather awkward to suggest it now, do so. But remember, you already said yes.

DEAR ABBY: It tickled my funny-bone to think that with all the uproar from Women's Libbers, they neglected to change MENopause to personopause.

J. E. IN EL CAJON, CALIF.
DEAR J.E.: MENopause is strictly for women, and I seriously doubt if any man would insist on getting a piece of the action.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Panel Probes West Point Honor System

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — A new panel of officers and cadets has been set up to investigate cheating at the U.S. Military Academy while officials decide whether to seek outside help to review the institution's honor system.

Administrators announced Monday the assignment of an officer-watchdog to oversee the Cadet Honor Board, the all-cadet panel which traditionally has enforced the military honor code.

The officials also announced creation of a review board of four officers and two cadets to investigate some of the charges.

Both moves are considered a sharp break with tradition.

A spokesman for Lt. Gen. Sidney Berry, the academy's superintendent, said Berry and Army Secretary Martin R. Hoffmann were "actively considering" an outside review of the honor system.

On Monday, Berry appointed Col. Hal B. Rhyne, the deputy commandant, as watchdog of the Honor Board. At the same time, Berry disclosed that 70 to 90 more cadets were suspected of cheating.

The superintendent said the new cases would go before the special officer-cadet board to determine if the Cadet Honor Code had been violated.

"The board will review all papers and all cases where there's evidence to suggest other cadets cheated or collaborated," Berry said.

Earlier, 116 cadets were considered for possible action by the Honor Board. Fifty-one were formally accused of cheating and three resigned. The others face disciplinary action later this week.

The new cases came to light after three instructors rechecked 823 electrical engineering examination papers, Berry said. The junior-year cadets were supposed to take the exam home, but they were not allowed to cooperate in preparing answers.

Housing Shortage To Become Critical

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — You think there's a housing shortage now? In the next 30 years, the United Nations says, 3.5 billion more people will need places to live, and that's enough to create 3,500 cities of a million residents each. There are fewer than 300 cities of that size now.

Aware of that, 4,000 delegates from 120 nations meet here for two weeks beginning Sunday in the fifth United Nations conference to be held this decade — the U.N. Conference on Human Settlements, or Habitat.

Delegates, in committee work and plenary sessions, will try to devise ways for coping with the worldwide urban crisis.

Participants in the conference and a parallel gathering — Habitat Forum, opening Thursday for representatives of nongovernmental organizations — face facts, the U.N. says, like these: —Another 600 million housing units will be needed in the next 30 years, or more than those existing in the entire world today.

—Even now, the World Health Organization believes more than a billion people don't have basics, like safe water to drink.

—Cities, towns and villages, especially those in developing countries, already are in crisis, lacking jobs, choked by pollution, crowded, inundated by slums, devoid of good transportation and riddled by crime.

"In the quest for human dignity, shelter ranks with nutrition and health care as an absolute necessity," said Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau in outlining goals for the conference.

"Yet no country in the world can claim that it provides adequate shelter to all its people — not those with the richest of technologies, not those with the most temperate of climates."

Officials expecting the conference to be stormy say tension will accompany the presence of a delegation from the Palestine Liberation Organization in an international mix that includes Israelis. Security preparations have been underway for half a year.

Mainland China is not participating. Delegates will jumpack Vancouver, Canada's West Coast metropolis. Hotel rooms have been booked months in advance. Temporary housing includes tents and cots, which go for $2 a night.

FTC Accepts O-I Accord

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland regional office of the Federal Trade Commission said Monday it has accepted an agreement with Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp., of Toledo, Ohio, containing a consent order prohibiting that company from making false and unsubstantiated claims for its fibrous glass insulation products.

An out-of-state complaint led to the consent agreement which challenged Owens-Corning's multistate television advertisements as to the amount of money consumers can save by installing the company's insulation in attics of their homes, the FTC said.

One such ad claimed savings could amount to $175 a year for homeowners.

The complaint alleged the company's savings' claims were overstated, that Owens-Corning did not have adequate data to substantiate the claims and that the claims were based on conditions which did not represent the average or typical residential attic.

The FTC said the order requires Owens-Corning to discontinue the misrepresentations, produce a reasonable basis for any future money savings claims and retain the substantial data for three years.

ADENA — The mansion house at Adena, has the atmosphere of an early southern built of sandstone from the Chillicothe area, plantation.

Adena: A Delightful Place

In 1806, a young surveyor from Virginia was so impressed with the beauty of southeastern Ohio, that he bought a large tract of land on a hill overlooking Chillicothe and "commenced the laying of stone" for his new home. In the fall of 1807, Thomas Worthington and his family occupied "Adena," a Hebrew name given to "places remarkable for the delightfulness of their situation."

Today, its distinguished occupants no longer walk the spacious grounds and the elaborate carriages that once carried such prominent Adena guests as President James Monroe, Henry Clay, Dewitt Clinton and Tecumseh, have given way to the more modern automobile and school bus. But the spirit of those leisurely, aristocratic days still linger on as Adena extends to this year's vacationers the same southern hospitality that was offered to its guests over a hundred years ago.

A scenic, twisting drive, affording excellent views of the five sandstone-peaked hills that inspired the design for the Great Seal of Ohio, leads to the 300 acre estate. Nestled in the foothills of the Allegheny Mountains, wandering through Adena is much like visiting the fine old plantation homes of the south.

The regality of the home lies in its taste, no opulence. Designed by Benjamin Latrobe, an architect of the National Capital, and influenced by Thomas Jefferson, the mansion's interior reflects the gracious living enjoyed by the Worthington family. Wallpaper from Baltimore, marble fireplace furnishings from Chester County and window glass from Pennsylvania decorated the heirloom-filled rooms. The furniture, mostly of the Hepplewhite and Sheraton styles, was made on the estate by Worthington's carpenter George McCormick. McCormick's own modest home, now a sales and information center, was recently reconstructed when a survey, made by James Worthington, Thomas' eldest son, located the former site of the building.

Visitors are invited to explore the fourteen rooms on their own, following a walking tour guide of the home, but costumed interpreters are always on hand to answer questions and offer interesting information. When one sees where Thomas Worthington chose to live and spend his time, a description of his character would be superfluous. An 1807 grand piano in the ballroom, the fragile exported Chinese porcelain in the state dining room and his portable mahogany desk, used while he served as Senator and Ohio's sixth governor, show visitors both the personal and professional sides of Worthington. Unfinished samples of embroidery, dolls and toys scattered throughout the five bedrooms, remind them of his wife and ten children who also occupied the home.

But Adena has more to offer than its distinctive architectural legacy. Outside, on the grounds surrounding the home, are located the outbuildings, garden and orchards common to any large Virginia plantation. Close to the house stand the servants' quarters, occupied by the slaves brought from Virginia and set free by the Worthingtons. The wash house, where all the paraphernalia of a long ago wash-day can be seen, and the smokehouse, in which hams and bacon were hung over a smudge fire of wood chips, are located within walking distance of the home. And, just to the south of the house, fronting the old carriage route, stands the bar, with its threshing floor and stables.

In spring, one of the best times to visit Adena, the formal garden turns into a botanical paradise. Originally designed by Mrs. Worthington and tended by German indentured servants, special flowers and shrubs were traded and brought from Worthington's friends in the east to supplement the plantings of native roses and perennials. Featured in the gardens is a pleached allee, a tree shaded arbor, that is commonly found in the Virginia gardens of the period. The more than two hundred varieties of flowers, fruits bushes and ornamental trees that are laid out in geometrical patterns in the garden today, were known to have grown there during the days of the development of Adena.

The orchard, which now serves as pastureland for the roaming livestock, was developed by Worthington, from which seedlings were sold to Ohio farmers and from which apples was made the popular drink "cyder."

And, for those with a special interest or inclination for hiking, there is a mile long nature trail, lined with wildflowers in season, which winds through the estate to the Worthington cemetery, where members of the family were buried.

Adena captures the flavor of one of Ohio's most romantic eras. Located off State Route 104, at the west end of Allen Avenue in Chillicothe, Adena is open April thru October, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

If you would like a free, 16-page color booklet on all of Ohio's "Yesterday Getaways," write the Public Information Office, Ohio Historical Center, 1-71 and 17th Ave., Columbus, Ohio 43211.

Byington Still Seeks Federal Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — If S. John Byington never gets a seat on the Consumer Product Safety Commission, he can't claim his supporters didn't try.

Once killed in committee, the Byington nomination was revived when President Ford resubmitted it for a shorter term.

Then, on Monday, the full Senate voted 37 to 33 to reject the appointment of Byington to a 2½-year term on the commission.

But before the day ended, Byington supporters revived the nomination once again. This time they won agreement to get a vote, probably later this week, on a motion to reconsider the negative vote.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., leader of the forces backing Byington, argued that the 37 votes against confirmation was far short of a majority of the 100-member Senate.

Ford had indicated he wanted Byington as chairman of the commission, but Byington opponents say they want a more vigorous consumer advocate to head the panel.

Carol Tucker Foreman, head of the Consumer Federation of America, issued a statement thanking senators who opposed confirmation "for their strong and appropriate action in rejecting the nomination."

She urged Ford to "submit the name of a qualified candidate who will represent the public interest." She noted the Senate Commerce Committee, which on May 4 rejected Byington for a seven-year term, "did a flip-flop and found him acceptable for a 2½-year term. The full Senate was fortunately more rational."

Dix President Of News Group

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — R. Victor Dix, executive editor of the Wooster Daily Record, has been elected president of the Blue Pencil Club of Ohio at its 43rd annual meeting.

LaVersa Motes, Xenia Daily Gazette was named vice president. Re-elected were William J. Oertel, executive director of the Ohio Newspaper Association, secretary; and Walter W. Seifert, professor of public relations at Ohio State University, treasurer.

Dix succeeds Margaret Grube of the Fairborn Daily Herald.

Man May Take Back Old Planes

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Though Charles Doyle is content to have his vintage airplanes displayed at the Air Force Museum, he wants to be sure he's treated fairly.

Doyle, a former airline pilot, and museum officials are embroiled in a controversy concerning his trade of a P-35 single passenger pursuit plane for two H-34 helicopters. Doyle, who lives near Minneapolis, said he took one of the helicopters in 1971 and was offered the second when the museum could furnish a new set of copter blades.

The Air Force Museum, located at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, acknowledges that Doyle has provided them with more vintage aircraft than any other single person. But officials say they don't remember the bargain the way Doyle does.

Mark Sloan, former curator of the museum, and present officials said they haven't seen any written agreement to supply new blades for the helicopter.

They have offered to supply the second helicopter now, saying it wasn't available earlier. That's not satisfactory to Doyle. He says he may take his plane back.

"I'd like to leave the P-35 in the museum," said Doyle. "That's where it belongs. But if we can't resolve this, I guess I have no alternative but to take it to an attorney."

Doyle said the airplane has been appraised at $225,000. He has six other aircraft and has been cited by the museum for his work in collecting the planes. In a letter to Doyle in 1974, Col. Bernie S. Bass wrote, "The Air Force Museum greatly appreciates what you have done to preserve military aviation history."

Ensley To End Career As Bishop

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — F. Gerald Ensley will end his 24-year-career as a bishop of the United Methodist Church during this summer's six major church gatherings, ending Aug. 31 in Dublin, Ireland.

His summer commitments include the West Ohio Conference in Lakeside-on-Lake Erie. Bishop Ensley has been president of the church's largest conference for the last 12 years.

As chairman of the World Methodist Council's Evangelism Committee since 1971, Bishop Ensley will preside over the 2,500 delegates at the church's session in Ireland.

Bishop Ensley's retirement is effective Sept. 1.

Knights Of Pythias Plan Bicentennial Celebration

Excitement is expected to run high when the Fraternal Order Knights of Pythias, and members from Philos Lodge Circleville, rally around Service to Man, and commemorate the American Revolution Bicentennial at the State House in Columbus, June 12, at 11:30 a.m.

The theme "American Patriotism: Spirit of '76" bicentennial celebration will be kicked off with a proclamation offered by Governor Rhodes also proclaiming the day as "Knights Of Pythias Day", citing the many humanitarian projects of the order that have in the past been carried on quietly, without display.

A "Bicentennial Salute To The Knights Of Pythias", was introduced recently by State Representative Michael Stinziano (D), and is scheduled to be on hand to welcome the Knights from all over Ohio to the Capital City.

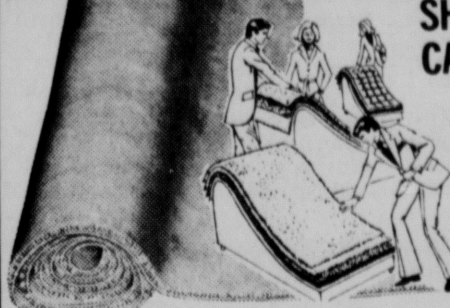

Frank Woodward Jr., Circleville, Grand Lodge Officer recently addressed the Pythians saying, "The Bicentennial occasion will be a time for us to review and reaffirm the basic principles on which this country was founded", adding "And for defining and dedicating ourselves to our common purposes, and return to our local communities with more individual involvement in local humanitarian projects."

The Mount Vernon Ohio Drum & Fife Corp, dressed in revolutionary uniforms, led by the Bicentennial Color Guard, and Flag Unit from Rickenbacker AFB will perform. A colorful display of Historic Flags associated with our country from its birth, to the present 50 Star American Flag will be a high point in the celebration.

A check for $2500 will be presented to the childrens Altruistic fund, which the Circleville Pythians have contributed generously to, to aid children up to the age of 16, whose parents cannot afford to have corrective surgery for speech defects, eye problems, and hearing disorders for their children.

The Knights of Pythias, a non-denominational, fraternal order believing in service to one's fellow man, was started in 1864 and now has 400,000 Knights and sisters across the United States and Canada. In the last four years the order has contributed over $1 million dollars to cystic fibrosis research.

The celebrations at the State House are open to the Public.

McCormick's own modest home, now a sales and information center, was recently reconstructed when a survey, made by James Worthington, Thomas' eldest son, located the former site of the building.

Visitors are invited to explore the fourteen rooms on their own, following a walking tour guide of the home, but costumed interpreters are always on hand to answer questions and offer interesting information. When one sees where Thomas Worthington chose to live and spend his time, a description of his character would be superfluous. An 1807 grand piano in the ballroom, the fragile exported Chinese porcelain in the state dining room and his portable mahogany desk, used while he served as Senator and Ohio's sixth governor, show visitors both the personal and professional sides of Worthington. Unfinished samples of embroidery, dolls and toys scattered throughout the five bedrooms, remind them of his wife and ten children who also occupied the home.

But Adena has more to offer than its distinctive architectural legacy. Outside, on the grounds surrounding the home, are located the outbuildings, garden and orchards common to any large Virginia plantation. Close to the house stand the servants' quarters, occupied by the slaves brought from Virginia and set free by the Worthingtons. The wash house, where all the paraphernalia of a long ago wash-day can be seen, and the smokehouse, in which hams and bacon were hung over a smudge fire of wood chips, are located within walking distance of the home. And, just to the south of the house, fronting the old carriage route, stands the bar, with its threshing floor and stables.

In spring, one of the best times to visit Adena, the formal garden turns into a botanical paradise. Originally designed by Mrs. Worthington and tended by German indentured servants, special flowers and shrubs were traded and brought from Worthington's friends in the east to supplement the plantings of native roses and perennials. Featured in the gardens is a pleached allee, a tree shaded arbor, that is commonly found in the Virginia gardens of the period. The more than two hundred varieties of flowers, fruits bushes and ornamental trees that are laid out in geometrical patterns in the garden today, were known to have grown there during the days of the development of Adena.

The orchard, which now serves as pastureland for the roaming livestock, was developed by Worthington, from which seedlings were sold to Ohio farmers and from which apples was made the popular drink "cyder."

And, for those with a special interest or inclination for hiking, there is a mile long nature trail, lined with wildflowers in season, which winds through the estate to the Worthington cemetery, where members of the family were buried.

Adena captures the flavor of one of Ohio's most romantic eras. Located off State Route 104, at the west end of Allen Avenue in Chillicothe, Adena is open April thru October, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Man May Take Back Old Planes

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Though Charles Doyle is content to have his vintage airplanes displayed at the Air Force Museum, he wants to be sure he's treated fairly.

Doyle, a former airline pilot, and museum officials are embroiled in a controversy concerning his trade of a P-35 single passenger pursuit plane for two H-34 helicopters. Doyle, who lives near Minneapolis, said he took one of the helicopters in 1971 and was offered the second when the museum could furnish a new set of copter blades.

The Air Force Museum, located at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, acknowledges that Doyle has provided them with more vintage aircraft than any other single person. But officials say they don't remember the bargain the way Doyle does.

Mark Sloan, former curator of the museum, and present officials said they haven't seen any written agreement to supply new blades for the helicopter.

They have offered to supply the second helicopter now, saying it wasn't available earlier. That's not satisfactory to Doyle. He says he may take his plane back.

"I'd like to leave the P-35 in the museum," said Doyle. "That's where it belongs. But if we can't resolve this, I guess I have no alternative but to take it to an attorney."

Doyle said the airplane has been appraised at $225,000. He has six other aircraft and has been cited by the museum for his work in collecting the planes. In a letter to Doyle in 1974, Col. Bernie S. Bass wrote, "The Air Force Museum greatly appreciates what you have done to preserve military aviation history."

Bishop Ensley's retirement is effective Sept. 1.

Knights Of Pythias Plan Bicentennial Celebration

Excitement is expected to run high when the Fraternal Order Knights of Pythias, and members from Philos Lodge Circleville, rally around Service to Man, and commemorate the American Revolution Bicentennial at the State House in Columbus, June 12, at 11:30 a.m.

The theme "American Patriotism: Spirit of '76" bicentennial celebration will be kicked off with a proclamation offered by Governor Rhodes also proclaiming the day as "Knights Of Pythias Day", citing the many humanitarian projects of the order that have in the past been carried on quietly, without display.

A "Bicentennial Salute To The Knights Of Pythias", was introduced recently by State Representative Michael Stinziano (D), and is scheduled to be on hand to welcome the Knights from all over Ohio to the Capital City.

Frank Woodward Jr., Circleville, Grand Lodge Officer recently addressed the Pythians saying, "The Bicentennial occasion will be a time for us to review and reaffirm the basic principles on which this country was founded", adding "And for defining and dedicating ourselves to our common purposes, and return to our local communities with more individual involvement in local humanitarian projects."

The Mount Vernon Ohio Drum & Fife Corp, dressed in revolutionary uniforms, led by the Bicentennial Color Guard, and Flag Unit from Rickenbacker AFB will perform. A colorful display of Historic Flags associated with our country from its birth, to the present 50 Star American Flag will be a high point in the celebration.

A check for $2500 will be presented to the childrens Altruistic fund, which the Circleville Pythians have contributed generously to, to aid children up to the age of 16, whose parents cannot afford to have corrective surgery for speech defects, eye problems, and hearing disorders for their children.

The Knights of Pythias, a non-denominational, fraternal order believing in service to one's fellow man, was started in 1864 and now has 400,000 Knights and sisters across the United States and Canada. In the last four years the order has contributed over $1 million dollars to cystic fibrosis research.

The celebrations at the State House are open to the Public.

Columbia Gas Reports Winter Consumption Down

Columbia Gas of Ohio used 22 billion cubic feet less gas last winter than anticipated because of unseasonably warm weather, increased conservation and slow economic conditions in certain industries in the state, it was announced today.

Calvin Danford, Circleville manager for the gas company, pointed out that the biggest part of the underrun was caused by temperatures last winter that averaged 11 per cent warmer than normal. This meant Columbia customers required 11.4 billion cubic feet less gas for heating than they would have in a normal winter.

Outstanding conservation efforts by residential users also resulted in a substantial reduction in gas used, according to Danford.

He said figures for the Nov. 1, 1975, through March 31, 1976, winter heating season show that, adjusted for weather, conservation by Columbia's residential customers resulted in 6.3 billion cubic feet — or 5.5 per cent — less gas being consumed last winter than during the 1974-75 heating season.

"The remainder of the underrun is attributed to lower than anticipated usage resulting from slow economic conditions in certain industries," Danford said.

"Columbia Gas of Ohio had anticipated that industrial customers would require some 8.6 billion cubic feet of gas less than full allocations due to the weak business climate in certain industries and took that into account in establishing winter curtailment levels. The actual industrial underrun was 13 billion cubic feet, however, or 4.3 billion cubic feet more than anticipated," Danford explained.

"This experience of the winter just past provides a perfect example of how the gas company's best possible planning can be affected by winter temperatures, fluctuations in the economy and other factors," the manager pointed out.

"For example, on last Feb. 7, the winter had been exactly normal as far as temperatures in Ohio are concerned. Except for conservation and specific industrial underruns, our gas usage projections were right on schedule," Danford said.

"However, from Feb. 7 through March 31, the weather was 346 degree days warmer than normal. For each degree day — the difference between 65 degrees and the average outside temperature for that day — Columbia delivers 33 million cubic feet of gas, or enough to heat 2,000 homes for a year."

The manager stressed that the exact opposite could have occurred very easily, and temperatures in Ohio could have averaged 346 degree days colder than normal. This would have meant customer usage would have been some 11 billion cubic feet more than forecast and the supply situation would have been much more severe.

"We must plan for a normal winter and adjust our supply figures to take temperatures and other changing conditions into account as quickly as possible as they occur," Danford said.

Panel Approves Mine Safety Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill that would update Ohio's deep mine safety law has been voted out of a Senate panel over the opposition of the chairman who charged his committee with seriously weakening the legislation.

"I think they gutted the bill," said Sen. Robert E. O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus, chairman of the Energy and Environment Committee.

O'Shaughnessy and Sen. Jerome Stano, D-24 Parma, cast the dissenting ballots as the committee voted 6-2 in favor of the heavily-amended version.

Officials of the United Mine Workers, District 6, the major backer of the bill, milled angrily about the committee room after the vote.

"I would say to the whole Senate," said District 6 President John Guzek, "anytime they want a bill, just let them go to the (mine) operators and let them write it."

The amendments, which drew fire from the mine union and O'Shaughnessy, were authored by the Ohio Mining and Reclamation Association, a mine owners and operators group. They were offered in committee by Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown.

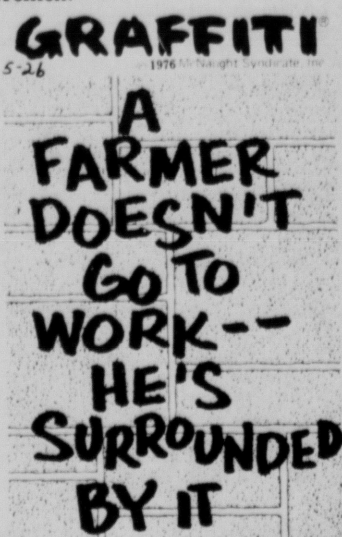

The bill, introduced almost a year ago, passed the House last month 98-0, in a form substantially different from the Senate plan.

The Senate panel voted to add the word "knowingly" before violation sections, soften the injunctive relief process, and delete a requirement for certification of mine superintendents.

"It's the position of the Ohio coal industry that we're not opposed to anything that will improve safety in Ohio," said the organization's lobbyist, Neal Tostenson, prior to presenting the amendments.

Tostenson said only one other state, Oklahoma, requires certification of the superintendent, the official responsible for the overall operation of an underground coal mine.

The bill, designed to bring state law in line with generally more stringent federal standards, goes beyond the federal code in this respect. It mandates certification of superintendents at the same examination level as mine foremen.

The operators say this would present a problem for men transferring into superintendents' job in Ohio from other states because of the 30 to 40 day lag time for the state examination.

"How can he see that the mine is run safely and productively if he doesn't understand the law," Guzek argued. "That mine superintendent makes all the decisions at the mine and don't let nobody tell you that he doesn't."

Guzek is up for re-election in December as head of the 16,000-member local which includes Ohio and the West Virginia panhandle.

The measure could be brought to the Senate floor during a three-day session set to begin June 9. If approved, it would be returned to the House where sponsor Arthur Bowers, D-98 Steubenville, says he will recommend a rejection of the Senate amendments, at the request of the UMW.

"That's not the end of the ballgame," promised cosponsor A.G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, who has close ties to the mine union.

Jets Beat Houston, 6-3

WINNIPEG (AP) — Center Ulf Nilsson has played some super hockey games for the Winnipeg Jets, but perhaps none as impressive or as important as Tuesday night.

The Swedish-born Nilsson scored three goals, one in each period, to spark Winnipeg to a key 6-3 triumph over the Houston Aeros and a commanding 3-0 lead in the World Hockey Association championship.

The Jets can capture their first-ever playoff title with a victory at home Thursday night.

"It was a super performance," Winnipeg Coach Bobby Kromm said of his forward. "You couldn't ask a player to do anything more than he did tonight."

"He played super hockey, offense and defense, killed penalties, scored goals and hit people. What else is there to do?"

Nilsson victimized Gordie Howe on his first two goals and scored the vital third-period goal to give Winnipeg a fourgoal lead that enabled them to coast home.

Anders Hedberg, Veli Ketola and Peter Sullivan scored the other Winnipeg goals with Don Larway getting two and Mark Howe one for Houston. Winnipeg held period leads of 4-1 and 5-2 and outshot Houston 25-18 before a capacity crowd of 10,384.

Fast Action Features Card At Atomic Speedway

The familiar names of Harbour and Coyan topped the first two features of the evening at Atomic Speedway's Annual Spring Championship.

The rain-delayed championship was "wild and woolly," a rather apt description by the track announcer as the events got underway on the 3/8 mile dirt oval. Good weather and a well-worked track resulted in fast qualifying times for most of the drivers, with the best times of the season being recorded.

George Harbour, Huntington, W. Va., qualified in 14.37 seconds in the super sprint division, with Chillicothean George Branscom making the round trip in 17.14 in his late model.

Harbour, Atomic's 1975 track champion, and super sprint winner of two weeks ago, ran roughshod over the competition to move up from his starting spot of eighth position and, by the halfway mark of the 40-lap feature, was in full command as leader of the pack. Interest then centered on the struggle going on between Jim Wical and Bobby Oney for the second spot, which had been vacated by Malcom Lovelace with engine trouble. Oney, of Columbus, never found the opening he needed and came in third behind Wical, of Bellefontaine.

The 40-lap late model feature was a "battle royal" right from the beginning, and when the dust cleared away, Don Clark of Wellston held the lead with a determined Paul Coyan breathing down his neck. Coyan, of Jackson, also a winner two weeks ago, finally edged past Clark to take the first-place money. Chillicothe's Greg Hatfield came in third, barely a fender ahead of Junior Smalley, of Waverly.

Davy Williams was the undisputed leader of the field of 16 cars in the hobby stocks feature for the entire 30 laps. The main battle, however, was fought by Chillicotheans Bob Crace Jr. and Dick French over second place, after Roger French dropped out of that spot during the tenth lap due to a mechanical problem. Dick French finally took the honor, with Crace coming in third.

Miss Atomic Speedway (Rhona McCloy) presented the trophies to the feature winners. The 17-year-old queen, a junior at Waverly High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McCloy, Alma. She will represent Atomic Speedway at all fairs and festivals in the area during the year.

The Memorial Day Championship will be held Saturday, with time trials starting at 6:30 p.m.

Pro Shop Captures Slow Pitch Contests

Pro Shop No. 2 topped Ashville Merchants, 12-4, and downed Circleville Jaycees, 21-5, in a pair of slow pitch games at Ted Lewis Park.

Gary Scherer hurled the first win with Bob Strawser pitching the second victory.

Terry Crumley had eight hits and Joe McGowan rapped six to lead the winners.

Harry Hoffer Makes Bid For Open Berth

Harry Hoffer qualified locally for the United States Open Golf Tournament at Guyan in Huntington, W. Va., when he carded 73-73-146 to place fourth in a field of 36 players.

Hoffer will move into the sectional qualifier June 7 at Cincinnati. If he qualifies there he will compete in the US Open at the Atlanta Athletic Club, Atlanta, Ga., in late June.

Noble Rogue Favored At Scioto Thursday

Billy Herman, currently the hottest driver at Scioto Downs, after posting his 13th victory in 25 starts last Friday night, has the early favorite this Thursday night in the $16,390 Challenge Stakes 4-year-old trot with Noble Rogue.

Noble Rogue, the son of Noble Victory, owned by K.D. Owen of Houston, Texas, has won one of two starts this year in 2:01 which made him the fastest 4-year-old trotting stallion over a five-eighths mile track at the time.

Boasting lifetime earnings of more than $233,000, Noble Rogue won a heat of the 1975 Hambletonian in 1:59 2-5. Then last fall at Lexington, Kentucky, Billy Herman climbed in the sulky for regular reinsman Jimmy Arthur after "The Rogue" finished fifth in the first heat of the Kentucky Futurity, and stepped off two straight heat wins to claim victory in the oldest trotting stake in America.

Noble Rogue's chief competition in the field of eleven 4-year-old trotting speedsters figures to come from Woody Who, a brown son of Blaze Hanover, owned by Donald Burks of Sycamore, Ohio, with Owen Burks in the sulky. Woody Who posted three straight victories at Raceway Park in Toledo, capped with a mile in 2:02 4-5 that craced the track trotting record.

One of Joe O'Brien's attributes as a champion trainer-driver, is to "get the most" out of a horse. Last Friday night, O'Brien subbing for the injured Dick Williams, honed Holly Almahurst down for her start in the Challenge Stakes with a dazzling new lifetime victory in 2:02 4-5. The daughter of Ohio's premier trotting sire, B. F. Coaltown is owned by Paul Fisher of Bucyrus, Ohio.

Excellent Tad, the son of Lincoln Land Tad who owns the world record for 2-year-old trotting geldings over a five eights mile track, will try to get back on the winning track Thursday night for driver George Meuller. The 4-year-old has won three of six starts this year, including a 2:03 2-5 over Buffalo Raceway's half mile oval.

The veteran driver Sanders Russell makes an infrequent appearance at Scioto Downs Thursday night with El McCloud a bay son of Carlisle who won nine of eighteen starts last year with a best time of 2:02 1-5.

Frank Todd, Jr., has the fast improving Highmark, third to Dancing Party last Friday night in 2:00 4-5, Mike Zellers, formerly with the Howard Beissinger stable, and now operating his own public stable, makes his first 1976 appearance at Scioto with Speedy Ayres, Joe Lighthill will take the Nevele Pride stallion, Richthofen postward, George Davis has Turn To Speed, Frank O'Mara will go with Miss Hightley, and Jim Parkinson has A. Wonder to complete the 11-horse Challenge Stakes field.

Jets Beat Houston, 6-3

WINNIPEG (AP) — Center Ulf Nilsson has played some super hockey games for the Winnipeg Jets, but perhaps none as impressive or as important as Tuesday night.

The Swedish-born Nilsson scored three goals, one in each period, to spark Winnipeg to a key 6-3 triumph over the Houston Aeros and a commanding 3-0 lead in the World Hockey Association championship.

The Jets can capture their first-ever playoff title with a victory at home Thursday night.

"It was a super performance," Winnipeg Coach Bobby Kromm said of his forward. "You couldn't ask a player to do anything more than he did tonight."

"He played super hockey, offense and defense, killed penalties, scored goals and hit people. What else is there to do?"

Nilsson victimized Gordie Howe on his first two goals and scored the vital third-period goal to give Winnipeg a fourgoal lead that enabled them to coast home.

Anders Hedberg, Veli Ketola and Peter Sullivan scored the other Winnipeg goals with Don Larway getting two and Mark Howe one for Houston. Winnipeg held period leads of 4-1 and 5-2 and outshot Houston 25-18 before a capacity crowd of 10,384.

Billy Herman, currently the hottest driver at Scioto Downs, after posting his 13th victory in 25 starts last Friday night, has the early favorite this Thursday night in the $16,390 Challenge Stakes 4-year-old trot with Noble Rogue.

Noble Rogue, the son of Noble Victory, owned by K.D. Owen of Houston, Texas, has won one of two starts this year in 2:01 which made him the fastest 4-year-old trotting stallion over a five-eighths mile track at the time.

Boasting lifetime earnings of more than $233,000, Noble Rogue won a heat of the 1975 Hambletonian in 1:59 2-5. Then last fall at Lexington, Kentucky, Billy Herman climbed in the sulky for regular reinsman Jimmy Arthur after "The Rogue" finished fifth in the first heat of the Kentucky Futurity, and stepped off two straight heat wins to claim victory in the oldest trotting stake in America.

Noble Rogue's chief competition in the field of eleven 4-year-old trotting speedsters figures to come from Woody Who, a brown son of Blaze Hanover, owned by Donald Burks of Sycamore, Ohio, with Owen Burks in the sulky. Woody Who posted three straight victories at Raceway Park in Toledo, capped with a mile in 2:02 4-5 that craced the track trotting record.

One of Joe O'Brien's attributes as a champion trainer-driver, is to "get the most" out of a horse. Last Friday night, O'Brien subbing for the injured Dick Williams, honed Holly Almahurst down for her start in the Friday Challenge Stakes with a dazzling new lifetime victory in 2:02 4-5. The daughter of Ohio's premier trotting sire, B. F. Coaltown is owned by Paul Fisher of Bucyrus, Ohio.

Excellent Tad, the son of Lincoln Land Tad who owns the world record for 2-year-old trotting geldings over a five eighths mile track, will try to get back on the winning track Thursday night for driver George Mueller. The 4-year-old has won three of six starts this year, including a 2:03 2-5 over Buffalo Raceway's half mile oval.

The veteran driver Sanders Russell makes an infrequent appearance at Scioto Downs Thursday night with El McCloud a bay son of Carlisle who won nine of eighteen starts last year with a best time of 2:02 1-5.

Frank Todd, Jr., has the fast improving Highmark, third to Dancing Party last Friday night in 2:00 4-5, Mike Zellers, formerly with the Howard Beissinger stable, and now operating his own public stable, makes his first 1976 appearance at Scioto with Speedy Ayres, Joe Lighthill will take the Nevele Pride stallion, Richthofen postward, George Davis has Turn To Speed, Frank O'Mara will go with Miss Highley, and Jim Parkinson has A. Wonder to complete the 11-horse Challenge Stakes field.

Tribe Tops Birds With 3-1 Victory

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pat Dobson isn't ready to make rash predictions about the Cleveland Indians, but he likes what he's seen of his new teammates.

The 33-year-old right-hander allowed nine hits Tuesday night, but topped the Baltimore Orioles 3-1 with the help of four double plays executed by shortstop Frank Duffy and second baseman Duane Kuiper.

"They've been turning the double play for me here, the way Mark Belanger and Dave Johnson did when I was with Baltimore," said an appreciative Dobson who is with his sixth team in eight seasons. "It's been lovely."

Dobson, whose 20-8 record with Baltimore in 1971 was by far his best season, declined to compare the two keystone combinations, saying: "I haven't been here long enough. But these guys are good."

The Indians stretched their longest 1976 winning streak to four straight by taking two games in Baltimore, while the Orioles have lost three in a row after winning nine of their previous 10.

Cleveland scored twice in the second inning off Jim Palmer, last year's Cy Young Award winner whose record dipped to 5-5, on two-out singles by Alan Ashby and Duffy.

The Indians added an unearned run in the fifth after Buddy Bell beat out an infield hit and continued to second on an overthrow by shortstop Belanger. A sacrifice bunt and Rico Carty's sacrifice fly pushed Bell across the plate.

When they won 4-0 Monday night, Cleveland scored one run on a sacrifice fly and another on a squeeze bunt.

"In the last week or so, we've been playing better fundamental baseball," said Dobson, now 4-5. "We weren't before, and it killed us. Our talent is as good as any team in the league, but it doesn't mean anything if you don't execute."

The Indians arrived in Baltimore with a 15-19 record, and 11 of their last 12 defeats had been either by one or two runs, or in extra innings.

The Orioles, held to one hit by Dennis Eckersley on Monday, scored their only run of the abbreviated series when Dave Duncan, Al Bumbry and Bobby Grich solved Dobson for singles in the third inning.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Quicker than you can count to 10, the Cincinnati Reds are getting into the swing of spring by letting George do it.

George Foster, a forgotten man two years ago, has become a one-man wrecking crew for The Cincinnati Lumber Company.

He drove in five runs for the second straight game Tuesday night, triggering a 10-4 trouncing of Atlanta with his sixth and seventh home runs of the year.

His explosive bat enabled unbeaten rookie Santo Alcala to record his fourth straight victory since joining the starting lineup. It was Cincinnati's third straight victory.

"He's a gun," marveled Manager Sparky Anderson, after Foster boomed seven hits in his last eight at-bats to up his batting average to .335. "He reminds me of Lee May the way the ball jumps off his bat. George doesn't hit any cheap ones."

The 27-year-old Foster is indeed cutting a wide swath through National League pitching. In the last six games, he has driven in 14 runs with four homers and a .500 batting average—12 for 24.

"He's just a very confident hitter now," assessed Atlanta starter Carl Morton, who went down to his fifth straight defeat.

Morton thinks Foster's power of positive thinking can psyche out a pitcher. "There's something to it. Pitchers sometime give in to a hitter that confident. It appears we make more mistakes to a guy like that."

Foster's bat binge has thrust him into the league RBI race, one run behind leader Dave Kingman of the New York Mets.

His 35 RBIs are almost half of what he amassed a year ago, when Anderson moved Pete Rose to third to make room for Foster's bat.

"A lot of guys say they want to hit 30 home runs and drive in 100 RBIs. My philosophy is that stats take care of themselves," says Foster.

With Johnny Bench struggling at the plate, Foster has been moved up higher in the lineup. He's thriving at his new spot.

"I like hitting higher in the lineup because you get more chances to drive in runs," he said.

"The difference between this year and last year is that I'm hitting homers with men on base. Last year I was batting eighth most of the time."

He credits his brimming confidence to getting a good look at opposing pitchers.

"Now I know most of the pitchers around the league. Before, I was sort of defensive."

Bench, who requested to be demoted in the batting order, drove in three runs as the Reds struck for three runs in the fifth and four in the seventh.

Alcala, 4-0, held Atlanta hitless for the first four innings but fought control problems, walking six. "Normally I am a control pitcher, but I couldn't get the rhythm."

The Reds today scheduled Gary Nolan, 3-3, against Andy Messersmith, who has won his last two starts. He is 2-4.

Tom Seaver has learned how to pitch to the Philadelphia Phillies — very carefully.

One of the hottest teams in baseball, the Phillies have beaten Seaver two times in the last week, including Tuesday night's 8-4 decision over the New York Mets.

"They're an extremely hot team — as hot as they can be," said Seaver.

"That's about as hot a club as I've seen in a long time. Everything they hit was in exactly the right place."

The Phillies' victory was their 24th in 30 games and boosted their lead to 5½ games in the National League East over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Seaver, a three-time Cy Young winner, continued to be treated with little respect by Tommy Hutton. He had three hits Tuesday night to boost his lifetime mark against Seaver to .424. Hutton has 14 career hits in 33 appearances and 11 RBI against the right-hander.

While the Phillies continued to roll, Seaver continued to reel. The loss was his fourth straight after four victories at the start of the season.

In the other National League games, the Cincinnati Reds whipped the Atlanta Braves 10-4; the San Diego Padres stopped the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2; the Montreal Expos trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-3 in 11 innings; the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-2 and the San Francisco Giants beat the Houston Astros 7-6.

Nicklaus Tourney Set Thursday

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus sighed.

"I can't really believe it's here," the Golden Bear said as the starting time approached for his lifetime dream golf tournament—The Memorial.

"I'm like a kid with a new toy—a great big toy," said Nicklaus, the chief architect, prime mover and driving force behind the new $200,000 event that gets underway Thursday with the legendary Bobby Jones as the first honoree.

"I've never been on this side of the fence before," he said. "Winning the U.S. Open is four days of hard work on the golf course. This is something else. It's something I have not been familiar with before."

"The only thing I haven't worked on is my own golf game," Nicklaus said with a laugh.

"If I won, I'd be the most surprised fellow in the field."

The select, international, invitational field of 96—trimmed down by some late withdrawals—starts the 72-hole chase for a $40,000 first prize Thursday over the Nicklaus-designed, owned and constructed Muirfield Village Golf Club course. It is a gorgeously conditioned layout playing to a par 72 and made up of 7,072 yards of Ohio countryside where the youthful Nicklaus hunted rabbits and squirrels.

"I started buying the property in 1966," he said. The course opened two years ago. The first of the tournaments that will honor a different golf notable each year begins Thursday.

"This is the start of something," Nicklaus said. "It's something I've always wanted to do. I am not going to be playing golf forever. But I want to be involved in golf."

Suns Ready For Clash With Celtics

BOSTON (AP) — Plunging into the Valley of the Suns has helped Paul Westphal reach his peak in professional basketball.

But one of the few downfalls he has encountered during his first season with the Phoenix Suns was last Sunday's opening game of the National Basketball Association's nationally televised best-of-seven championship series against the Boston Celtics. In that game, a 98-87 loss to his former teammates, Westphal, the Suns' leading scorer, hit only four of 17 field goal attempts and scored eight points.

Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn, however, is quite cognizant of Westphal's capabilities and doesn't figure the Suns' hard-driving guard to have such a poor showing in Thursday night's Game Two at the Boston Garden.

"They'll be looking to go to Westy," said Heinsohn. "He's a big part of their offense. He could break out. He's a good shooter, and he could come back and hit 10 of 17."

Heinsohn's decision to put Jo Jo White on Westphal was credited with adversely affecting the play of the Suns' backcourtman. During the regular season, Westphal had been guarded by Charlie Scott, the player he had been traded for a year ago.

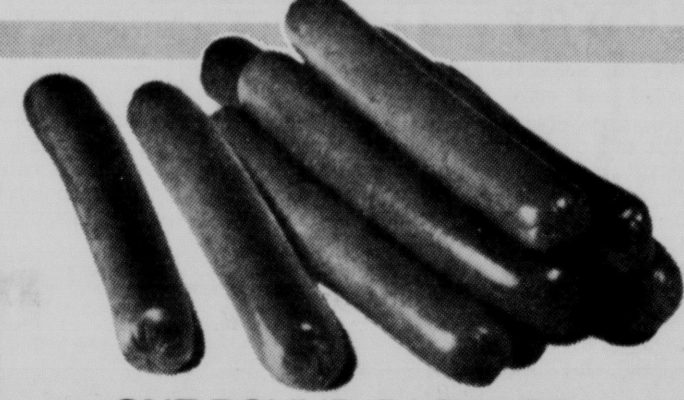

Heinsohn explained that he made the change because he wanted Scott guarding the Phoenix player bringing the ball upcourt, in this case, rookie Ricky Sobers. That job had been Westphal's earlier in the season, but when Dick Van Arsdale suffered a broken bone in his left arm, Sobers took his place in the lineup and has been there ever since.

Fred Shaffer, after scouting 28 years for the Chicago White Sox, now scouts at the major league level for the Oakland A's.

Abel Says U.S. Change Needed

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Ohio AFL-CIO may listen to three Democratic party presidential hopefuls without taking a public stand, but United Steelworkers of America President I. W. Abel has left little doubt about what he thinks of Republican leadership in the White House.

"We need a change of occupants in the White House," Abel told the nearly 1,500 delegates who had gathered Tuesday for the opening of the organization's three-day convention.

"We can't afford a president, who says America can't afford to educate our children adequately; says America can't afford to care for the sick and needy; says America can't afford to feed the hungry.

"I say in short, we can't afford Ford."

Abel accused President Ford of choosing to fight inflation by "putting the American worker through the economic wringer" and charged that the worker had been made expendable in the battle to boost the economy.

There also was little in Abel's speech that could have provided any comfort for former California governor Ronald Reagan, the man who is challenging Ford for the Republican nomination.

"It is difficult to see him as a serious candidate for the White House because of his extreme views on the issues. Frankly, he scares the hell out of a lot of people," said Abel, who admitted his own personal preference remains Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn.

Columbia Gas Seeks To Eliminate Pipeline Accidents

Today's Headline: "Construction Begins on New Facility."

Tomorrow's Headline: "Gas Service Cut Off as Contractor Hits Line."

In an effort to eliminate such accidents—and there were 811 of them last year, or an average of two a day, in Columbia Gas of Ohio's 56-county service area—the gas company has joined with several other utilities to form the Ohio Utilities Protection Service (OUPS).

"It's a free, 'one-call' telephone service," according to Calvin Danford manager in this area for Columbia Gas of Ohio, "for anyone planning to dig with motorized equipment anywhere in Ohio, and its primary purpose is to promote safety and prevent accidental damage to underground pipelines and cables.

"Successful operation of the new state-wide service also could mean significant savings in operating expenses for Columbia Gas of Ohio," Danford said. "It has been operating on a limited basis in northeastern Ohio since 1972, and last year helped reduce our digging damage in that area by about 35 per cent.

"Aside from the considerable inconvenience to customers when service is cut off," the manager continued, "digging accidents run up costs for both our company and the responsible party. While the average cost of repairs is about $190 for each dig-in, expenses can go as high as $11,000 for materials, labor and lost gas."

Safety and conservation are equally vital factors, Danford added. "While injuries and loss of equipment have been rare to date, the threat is always present and even one death or injury that could have been prevented is too many. Also, we are transporting a valuable product that is in short supply and we don't want it wasted through negligence."

Argument At Work Brings Death

CLEVELAND (AP) — An argument that started with a foreman's demand that a tool and die company employee close a window left one man dead Tuesday and four others hurt, including the angry employee, police said.

Dead was John P. Zakarowsky, 50, of Cleveland, whose widow Clementine described him as a peacemaker throughout his 24 years with Bardons & Oliver Inc.

The gunfire that drove workers out of the plant began when Orlando Johnson, 32, of East Cleveland, returned to the plant Tuesday to pick up his tools, police said.

The window-closing incident came on Monday, witnesses said. Foreman Andrew Javorsky had told Johnson to close it, Johnson refused; and Javorsky suspended him and ordered him to leave. When he refused to do so, a company official fired him.

Then Tuesday morning he walked up to Javorsky's desk with one hand in his pocket, raised his arms and began shooting, witnesses said. A bullet grazed Javorsky's back.

Johnson then turned and fired several times into the machine room. one shot striking 28-year-old Placido Occhino in the mouth and knocking out a tooth. Another hit Ray Klim, 49, in the right hip.

Robert Rice, 54, of Macedonia, suffered a graze wound in the buttocks.

Gilberto Quinones, 20, of Cleveland, running to cover as the gunfire erupted, injured his stomach as he collided with a machine.

Zakarowsky, struck by three shots, died a short time later in a hospital.

Q. How long does it take for Nationwide to pay off?

A. Within 48 hours after proof of loss in most cases.

There are a number of reasons why nine out of ten Nationwide auto policy holders renew with Nationwide year after year. One very good reason is that most claims are paid within 48 hours after proof of loss.

That's a pretty good record. We're trying to beat it. Why not call about our auto insurance today.

Eye Boost In Union Dues

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The special convention that's to consider boosting union dues for members of United Rubber Workers to replenish the union's depleted strike-benefit fund won't provide funds for the 60,000 members now on strike, their chief says.

URW President Peter Bommarito flew to Chicago Tuesday to prepare for the Thursday assembly, but not before blasting rubber companies for using white-collar personnel to build tires during the strike, now in its sixth week.

The URW leader also said threats of plant closings have produced a new union demand in the negotiations that already were stalled on economic issues and had recessed last week until June 1.

And he said that Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. planned to raise prices and blame the strike.

Bommarito contended the struck tire companies were using untrained clerical and supervisory personnel to build tires during the strike, Bommarito said the practice presented "a clear safety hazard to the consuming public."

Goodyear and Goodrich responded that there is no quality problem with the tires being built, and Goodrich called Bommarito's allegations "nonsense, and he knows better."

Firestone refused to comment, and Uniroyal Inc. officials couldn't be reached.

Bommarito said he asked the Department of Transportation to investigate.

Goodyear said it has nonunion personnel doing such work now but that they were supervisors who used to be tire builders. Goodrich said it has former tire makers supervising production by others.

In an effort to eliminate such accidents—and there were 811 of them last year, or an average of two a day, in Columbia Gas of Ohio's 56-county service area—the gas company has joined with several other utilities to form the Ohio Utilities Protection Service (OUPS).

Argument At Work Brings Death

CLEVELAND (AP) — An argument that started with a foreman's demand that a tool and die company employee close a window left one man dead Tuesday and four others hurt, including the angry employee, police said.

Dead was John P. Zakarowsky, 50, of Cleveland, whose widow Clementine described him as a peacemaker throughout his 24 years with Bardons & Oliver Inc.

The gunfire that drove workers out of the plant began when Orlando Johnson, 32, of East Cleveland, returned to the plant Tuesday to pick up his tools, police said.

The window-closing incident came on Monday, witnesses said. Foreman Andrew Javorsky had told Johnson to close it, Johnson refused; and Javorsky suspended him and ordered him to leave. When he refused to do so, a company official fired him.

Then Tuesday morning he walked up to Javorsky's desk with one hand in his pocket, raised his arms and began shooting, witnesses said. A bullet grazed Javorsky's back.

Johnson then turned and fired several times into the machine room, one shot striking 28-year-old Placido Occhino in the mouth and knocking out a tooth. Another hit Ray Klim, 49, in the right hip.

Robert Rice, 54, of Macedonia, suffered a graze wound in the buttocks.

Gilberto Quinones, 20, of Cleveland, running to cover as the gunfire erupted, injured his stomach as he collided with a machine.

Zakarowsky, struck by three shots, died a short time later in a hospital.

"STITCH IN TIME" — Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., employs marks location of underground gas pipeline prior to building contractor's excavation at new construction site. Columbia has joined with other utilities to form Ohio Utilities Protection Service so one toll-free telephone call will warn anyone planning to dig anywhere in Ohio about buried pipelines. Instrument on ground is "pipe and cable locator" used to determine exact location of underground facilities.

The toll-free "Call Before You Dig" phone number is (800) 362-2764. It connects the caller with the OUPS reporting center in Youngstown, which has teletypes connected to similar machines at four key locations in Columbia Gas of Ohio's service area — Alliance, Columbus, Toledo and Middleburg Heights. Calls involving counties where Columbia has pipe lines are relayed to these points. Pipeline maps are checked there and calls are made to the nearest gas company facilities to verify locations. Call-backs are then made to report the locations of any buried pipelines and they are marked physically with signs where necessary.

Calls involving Columbia Gas of Ohio's service area have more than doubled since the new statewide system has been operating, Danford said, and the company anticipates adding additional teletype locations as activity warrants.

"We would prefer to have at least 48 hours notice of plans to dig," he emphasized, "but the reporting center will accept calls anytime and a person does not need to be planning a large excavation to be a threat. Homeowners using small backhoes to plant shrubbery, companies erecting poles and fence installers digging postholes all can — and have gone right into our lines."

OUTDOOR COOKERY

Cooking meat over an open fire was the earliest form of food preparation. Today's families still enjoy the flavor of foods cooked over an outdoor fire.

Good food starts with a good fire. Line the grill with heavy duty aluminum foil for faster cooking and easier clean up. Stack the briquets in a pyramid. They light faster when air can circulate around them.

During the day, the coals are ready for cooking when they are covered with a light gray ash. At night, the coals will have a bright red glow. To test the temperature, hold your hand at cooking height, palm side down. If you can keep it in that position for two seconds the temperature is high or hot, three seconds medium hot, four seconds, medium, five seconds low.

To raise the temperature, tap the ash from the coals or push them closer together. To lower the temperature, spread the coals out. If the grill rack is wiped clean lightly with vegetable oil, the meat will not stick and cleaning the rack will be easier.

For an easy beef on skewers meal, marinate chunks of sirloin steak, green peppers, onions and tomatoes in red wine vinegar and oil salad dressing for two to three hours. Thread meat and vegetables alternately on skewers. Grill over medium hot coals until the steak reaches the desired degree of doneness.

Have you purchased your historical flags yet? One Columbus resident who purchased an entire set of the small flags tells us she used them to make a bicentennial quilt.

OUTDOOR COOKERY

Cooking meat over an open fire was the earliest form of food preparation. Today's families still enjoy the flavor of foods cooked over an outdoor fire.

Good food starts with a good fire. Line the grill with heavy duty aluminum foil for faster cooking and easier clean up. Stack the briquets in a pyramid. They light faster when air can circulate around them.

During the day, the coals are ready for cooking when they are covered with a light gray ash. At night, the coals will have a bright red glow. To test the temperature, hold your hand at cooking height, palm side down. If you can keep it in that position for two seconds the temperature is high or hot, three seconds medium hot, four seconds, medium, five seconds low.

To raise the temperature, tap the ash from the coals or push them closer together. To lower the temperature, spread the coals out. If the grill rack is wiped clean lightly with vegetable oil, the meat will not stick and cleaning the rack will be easier.

For an easy beef on skewers meal, marinate chunks of sirloin steak, green peppers, onions and tomatoes in red wine vinegar and oil salad dressing for two to three hours. Thread meat and vegetables alternately on skewers. Grill over medium hot coals until the steak reaches the desired degree of doneness.

Have you purchased your historical flags yet? One Columbus resident who purchased an entire set of the small flags tells us she used them to make a bicentennial quilt.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Extra care needed in financial matters, but do your own thinking about them. Advice from others could lead you off on false trails.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Do not take a position for or against any issue until sure of your ground. Analyze glamorous sounding propositions: they could be misleading in details.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Stellar influences indicate some indecisiveness. Counter by urging yourself into positive action. Handle each situation as it arises, evaluate each on its own merits.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): In dealings with others, be sure to note their reactions. The right word at the right time could be a big factor in putting over your ideas.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Fine solar influences! Invent, improvise, build anew where it will help you to take a forward step. Your incentive and ingenuity should be keen.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Routine activities should run without many hitches, yet there may be certain interruptions in new ventures. Don't be dismayed. With careful study, you can cope.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Unusual tact needed here — in family, social and business circles. Don't "rock the boat" or stir up dissension — only too easily done now, if you are not.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Fine Mars influences! Be on the lookout for good leads, projects with substantial background. Business interests especially favored.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Stellar aspects excellent! If any of your plans have been stymied lately, THIS is the time to try again. Imagination and originality stimulated.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Tendencies to avoid now: undue suspicion of others, groundless fears, a desire to invade the privacy of associates. Concentrate on your own activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Alertness, reading between the lines, will keep you on the beam. Be consistent in all endeavors. Some new advantages indicated.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): A good day for trying out a new idea or method. You have the ability to turn the ordinary into the interesting, improve the mediocre with a novel twist. Use it!

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a keen, discerning and analytical mind; are original and highly imaginative in all that you undertake. Mercury, your governing planet, has bestowed upon you a magnificent gift of words, and the history of Geminians is replete with the names of great writers, reporters, editors and playwrights. You are extremely articulate, so your gift of words extends to the lecture platform, to the classroom and to the electronic media. You have other talents, too, and may choose music, the theater or the law as a career. Unlike many others born under your Sign, you could also reach top-level attainment in the financial world. Birthdate of: Jay Gould, industrial tycoon; Amelia Bloomer, early advocate of women's rights; Vincent Price, stage and screen star; Herman Wouk, Amer. author; Sam Snead, renowned golfer; Isadora Duncan, world-famous dancer.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — Because of antenna trouble, I missed much of NBC's coverage of the Ali-Dunn dispute in Munich. But my German cousin, Hans, saw it all at home in Berlin. He mailed me this report:

"Before das grossen biffen, Herr Josef Garagiola introduced Herr Richard Von Enberg, Herr Larry Sportzenwriter und Fraulein Candice Bergen, das cutie who snappen der pixen.

"Herr Garagiola talken. Herr Von Enberg talken. Herr Sportzenwriter talken. Fraulein Bergen nicht snappen der pixen but also talken. Und der commercialschlaffen talken. Und talken. Und talken.

"Und den, Herr Duane Bobick und Herr Bunny Johnson — was ist der Bunny? — go biffen, biffen, biffen. Den Herr Bunny nicht biffen. Herr Bunny kaput in eight.

"Denn das commercialschlaffen ist talken und talken. Hans goen der iceboxen und getting der salami, das pretzel, das chill steinen und der six-pack mit der poppentoppen.

"Hans returnen das boob tuben. Herr Garagiola talken der pre-tapen — was ist pre-tapen? — talken mit Herr Richard Dunn. Herr Dunn speaken das Yorkshire und nicht maken sense.

"Frau Dunn also talken. Frau sprechen Herr Dunn toldt after each kaput, 'Keep das garden up.' Frau Dunn maken sense.

"Ein commercialschlaffen. Den Fraulein Bergen, das cutie who snappen der pixen mit Ali, talken und shopen pixen. Und she sprechen, 'I know boxing beans.' Vas ist der beans?

"Ah, mox nix. Der Dunn-Ali biffen beginen. Mit three biffen, Herr Von Enberg exclamen veteran sportzenschtaffel surprisen Herr Dunn can take der biffen.

"Ah, but biffen four, Herr Dunn folden. Herr Dunn uprisen, und biffed again. Und ist kaput? Nein! Herr Dunn in biffen five ist kaput, uprisen, kaput, uprisen. But five kaput ein stoppen.

"Herr Ali talken und Herr Von Enberg talken. Herr Dunn also talken, making der veteran sportzenschtaffel looken very surprisen.

"Fraulein Bergen, who un-snappen der pixen during das biffen, asked comment der biffen. She exclamen, 'Nein.' Fraulein Bergen ein smart cookie."

Thank you, Hans. Turning now to the Nielsen figures, NBC expects to claim a ratings victory with its coverage of Monday's fight, basing its rosy outlook on the early returns from here and Los Angeles.

Nielsen estimates show that the fight was seen by 49 per cent of Fun City's home audience and 45 per cent of the LA audience. But whether it fared as well elsewhere must await the national Nielsen's next week.

For those keeping score, Ali's dull tiff with the Lion of Flanders on CBS in February was seen in nearly 16.6 million homes. He did better in his 15-rounder in April with Jimmy Young on ABC, the bout seen in nearly 17.7 million homes, according to Nielsen estimates.

The Navy Jack is a flag of the U.S. Navy. It has 50 white stars on a blue background and is flown from the bow of a ship from sunrise until sunset.

The garter snake is a common reptile of the fields. It feeds on frogs, toads and earthworms. It is not poisonous.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Extra care needed in financial matters, but do your own thinking about them. Advice from others could lead you off on false trails.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Do not take a position for or against any issue until sure of your ground. Analyze glamorous sounding propositions; they could be misleading in details.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Stellar influences indicate some indecisiveness. Counter by urging yourself into positive action. Handle each situation as it arises, evaluate each on its own merits.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): In dealings with others, be sure to note their reactions. The right word at the right time could be a big factor in putting over your ideas.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Fine solar influences! Invent, improvise, build anew where it will help you to take a forward step. Your incentive and ingenuity should be keen.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Routine activities should run without many hitches, yet there may be certain interruptions in new ventures. Don't be dismayed. With careful study, you can cope.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Unusual tact needed here — in family, social and business circles. Don't "rock the boat" or stir up dissension — only too easily done now, if you are not alert.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Fine Mars influences! Be on the lookout for good leads, projects with substantial background. Business interests especially favored.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 24 to Dec. 23): Stellar aspects excellent! If any of your plans have been stymied lately, THIS is the time to try again. Imagination and originality stimulated.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 24 to Jan. 20): Tendencies to avoid now: undue suspicion of others, groundless fears, a desire to invade the privacy of associates. Concentrate on your own activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Alertness, reading between the lines, will keep you on the beam. Be consistent in all endeavors. Some new advantages indicated.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): A good day for trying out a new idea or method. You have the ability to turn the ordinary into the interesting, improve the mediocre with a novel twist. Use it!

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a keen, discerning and analytical mind; are original and highly imaginative in all that you undertake. Mercury, your governing planet, has bestowed upon you a magnificent gift of words, and the history of Geminians is replete with the names of great writers, reporters, editors and playwrights. You are extremely articulate, so your gift of words extends to the lecture platform, to the classroom and to the electronic media. You have other talents, too, and may choose music, the theater or the law as a career. Unlike many others born under your Sign, you could also reach top-level attainment in the financial world. Birthdate of: Jay Gould, industrial tycoon; Amelia Bloomer, early advocate of women's rights; Vincent Price, stage and screen star; Herman Wouk, Amer. author; Sam Snead, renowned golfer; Isadora Duncan, world-famous dancer.

NEW YORK (AP) —

Because of antenna trouble, I missed much of NBC's coverage of the Ali-Dunn dispute in Munich. But my German cousin, Hans, saw it all at home in Berlin. He mailed me this report:

"Before das grossen biffen, Herr Josef Garagiola introduced Herr Richard Von Enberg, Herr Larry Sportzenwriter and Fraulein Candice Bergen, das cutie who snappen der piken.

"Herr Garagiola talken. Herr Von Enberg talken. Herr Sportzenwriter talken. Fraulein Bergen nicht snappen der piken but also talken. Und der commercialschlaffen talken. Und talken. Und talken.

"Fraulein Bergen, who un-snapen der piken during das biffen, asked comment der biffen. She exclamen, 'Nein.' Fraulein Bergen ein smart cookie."

Thank you, Hans. Turning now to the Nielsen figures, NBC expects to claim a ratings victory with its coverage of Monday's fight, basing its rosy outlook on the early returns from here and Los Angeles.

Nielsen estimates show that the fight was seen by 49 per cent of Fun City's home audience and 45 per cent of the LA audience. But whether it fared as well elsewhere must await the national Nielsen's next week.

For those keeping score, Ali's dull tiff with the Lion of Flanders on CBS in February was seen in nearly 16.6 million homes. He did better in his 15-rounder in April with Jimmy Young on ABC, the bout seen in nearly 17.7 million homes, according to Nielsen estimates.

The Navy-Jack is a flag of the U.S. Navy. It has 50 white stars on a blue background and is flown from the bow of a ship from sunrise until sunset.

Washington Twp. School Celebrates Bicentennial

Washington Township School turned back the pages of time when characters and events of the past came to life during the recent bicentennial celebration.

The entire school donned bicentennial attire for an interesting and educational day.

The first and second grades combined in celebrating the bicentennial in such activities as filmstrips on colonial life, discussions including the growing of sugarcane as a colonial crop, with a sample for everyone, and a demonstration of wool spinning by Mrs. Barbara Martindale.

As in a true celebration there were songs, games, and first-hand craft experiences such as candle-making, butter churning, creek-clay projects, stitched samplers by the first graders, showing a symbol and initials, log cabins from shoeboxes, and "unwoven" book markers from burlap as the second graders' follow-up of the homelife and weaving of our ancestors.

The first and second grades would like to thank Mrs. John Beck for the use of her authentic equipment and information, and Mrs. Janet Drake and Mrs. Kathryn Hill for incorporating the theme into the arts and music schedules.

The third and fourth grade classes chose a variety of Early American crafts and activities for their bicentennial celebration.

Third graders participated in weaving and quilting projects. The girls made dust caps to wear during the bicentennial program and the boys made marble bags. Booklets were completed with the emphasis being historical events, places, and documents. Filmstrips and films were shown depicting dress, homes, and modes of travel in our two hundred year past.

One group of fourth graders participated in a variety of activities including weaving, embroidery-crewel work, quill pen making, whittling sling shots from old wood and leather, crafting a wooden knife and carrier, and making bean bags and a post and hoop game by hand.

Old-fashioned peanut dolls, yarn-dolls, and a Raggedy Ann doll made from old clothing material were hand crafted by the students. The children also applied their hand tracings on their teacher's dress by hand and their names were written with embroidery markers on the hands.

Another group of fourth graders concentrated their efforts on old-fashioned rug hooking. This craft was introduced to their teacher by Adena tour guides who will see the children's completed work when the fourth graders journey to Adena on their field trip this month.

Some of the children's original designs include cardinals, flowers, a baseball and bat, butterflies, rockets, and pumpkins. Cloth-backed booklets were also constructed containing famous document excerpts, speeches given by famous Americans such as Chief Logan and Abraham Lincoln, and the children's favorite poems. The students also sang the Preamble of the United States Constitution during the PTO bicentennial program.

Mrs. Winona Ramsey's fifth grade spent the day reenacting a typical school day in the 1800's using McGuffey Readers, McGuffey Spellers for spelling bees, and a Webster Dictionary used in 1873. The students sat on wooden benches around a replica of a pot-bellied stove. Literature on McGuffey, quills, and a folding tin cup were most interesting.

The sixth grades and their teachers, Miss Nancy Beery, Miss Sandra Snyder, and Principal Dale Drake, spent time studying about America's first hundred years using material from a book entitled "1876 Centennial." They ended their study by making homemade ice cream and old-fashioned cookies, which were typical of last day school picnics and social gatherings.

The day long activities were climaxed that night with a program for the PTO entitled "The History of Education in Washington Township." Using school records, dating back to the beginning of education in the township and personal material belonging to Oakley Leist, the teachers wrote skits and narrations which made an authentic, composite picture of the changing school.

Miss Snyder's class presented a skit of the "Log Cabin Era," which started in 1820 and lasted until 1835. The first school was taught by a Mr. Horn, using books brought from the East. The school was very primitive and the students were very respectful.

"This is Your Life Washington School," was the theme for Miss Beery's and Drake's sixth grade when they went back to the Little Red School House era, which was from 1835-1917. Many believe that this will never again be matched by another educational era.

The minutes of school directors and later boards of education from 1820-1917 were used by Mrs. Ramsey's fifth grade to reenact meetings of different years to show a teacher evaluation, the first school census, and various expenditures in different districts. Of interest, was a skit reenacting an unsuccessful search in 1839 for a school director of District No. 6.

The students in Mrs. Jacquelyn Schrader's fifth grade class presented the third type of school, the Washington Township Centralized School, which appeared in 1917 and remained until our school was consolidated in 1957 with Pickaway and Saltcreek to form Logan Elm School District.

Names and information were presented as they were found in the authentic records.

Butz Backs New Image Of Presidency

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — As he began a day-long campaign swing through Ohio in support of President Ford, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz told farmers that Ford has brought to the presidency "the image that the world needs."

"Honesty in government is what the country seeks," Butz told a breakfast gathering of 400 farmers and Republican leaders. He said the President embodies the spirit of honesty in government.

Butz linked the President's fiscal policies with agricultural interests, saying that farmers agree with Ford's policy of decreasing the rapidly advancing federal budget.

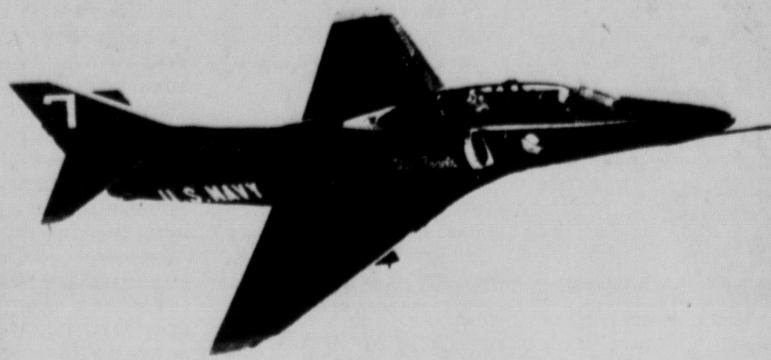

"I think it's time to blow the whistle (on the budget), Jerry Ford thinks so and if I read the farmers right they do, too," the secretary of agriculture said.

Ford was scheduled to arrive in Ohio later today for campaign appearances in Columbus.

While Butz spoke in support of the president's policies, he also criticized the Democrats in Congress for working against programs of the Ford Administration.

"The Democratic Congress is a disaster," he said. "Their theory is spend, spend, spend—borrow, borrow, borrow."

Earlier, Butz stopped briefly in Cleveland enroute to a series of meetings in Ohio, characterizing Ford as the man "who brought decency to the White House."

Blue Angel Is Husband Of Former Circleville Girl

Nile Kraft, the 28-year-old Blue Angel Narrator, was born in Minneapolis, Minnesota and raised in Gilmann, Illinois.

He is the husband of the former Catherine Griner of Circleville, the daughter of Mazie Griner, 826 Dartmouth Drive, and the late Dr. Ned Griner.

An Illinois State Scholar in high school, he held active interests in athletics, becoming an all-conference end in football his junior year and Team Captain his senior year.

The son of a Navy fighter pilot, he began working toward his goal of becoming a Naval Aviator by enlisting in the Naval Air Reserve while still in high school. In his senior year he was a "Weekend Warrior" attached to Patrol Squadron 722 at NAS Glenview. Selected to attend the U.S. Naval Academy, Nile entered in June of 1965 and received his commission and degree in Weapons Systems Engineering in June 1969.

In July of 1969 he entered flight training at NAS Pensacola, Florida. In December 1970 he fulfilled his lifelong ambition and was designated a Naval Aviator. He chose a warfare specialty of Light Attack, and reported to NAS Lemoore, California, in January 1971 to begin training in the A-7E Corsair II.

In September of 1971 Lieutenant Kraft reported to attack Squadron 192. While attached to the "World Famous Golden Dragons" he served as Weapons Training Officer and completed two deployments to Southeast Asia aboard the USS Kitty Hawk.

In March 1974 he reported to the A-7E Replacement Squadron in Lemoore as an Instructor Pilot. While attached to VA-122, he served as a Weapons Training Officer and the Air Combat Maneuvering Phase Officer. Nile reported to the Blue Angels in October 1975.

Lieutenant Kraft has flown 223 combat missions and accumulated 333 carrier arrested landings. He has been awarded two Distinguished Flying Crosses, 26 Air Medals (three for individual action), eight Navy Commendation Medals with Combat "V," two Navy Unit Commendations, the Meritorious Unit Commendation, the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry, Gallantry Cross Unit Citation, and the Vietnamese Service and Campaign Medals.

Nile and his wife reside at Pensacola, Fla.

The Blue Angels will perform in Dayton July 24-25.

On June 15, 1946, the Blue Angels flew their first flight demonstration to "demonstrate precision techniques of naval aviation to naval personnel and, if directed, to the public." Today, after 30 years, the 1976 Blue Angels accomplish essentially the same mission. However, the mission has taken on new perspectives.

By presenting a faultless display of aerial artistry to what has now exceeded 122 million spectators, the Blue Angels seek to attract talented and qualified youth to join them in the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps. This is an important function in an all-volunteer naval force. As "ambassadors of goodwill," the Blue Angels take naval aviation to the public as a means of demonstrating the quality of men and equipment employed by the U.S. Naval service. When traveling abroad, this role is expanded as these young men represent our country and those who serve it.

Internally, the Flight Demonstration

Squadron strives to set a standard of perfection for its contemporaries in naval aviation so as to allow our Navy and Marine Corps to continue to produce the finest aviators in the world.

Fourteen officers and 74 enlisted personnel comprise the Navy's Flight Demonstration Squadron, the Blue Angels.

Seven of the officers are tactical jet pilots, four of whom fly in the diamond formation, two as solo maximum performance demonstrators and the seventh is the narrator for the aerial demonstration who also provides jet orientation flights for news media representatives. The Naval Flight Officer is responsible for logistics coordination and public affairs. Our Maintenance Officer is in charge of the enlisted maintenance crew and is responsible for ensuring that the 10 aircraft assigned are kept in top-notch condition. The Squadron's Flight Surgeon administers to both the physical and psychological needs of the officers and the enlisted personnel, and the Administrative Officer and Supply Officer perform their duties and maintain normal operations while the Blues are on the road. There are also two Marine Corps transport pilots and five enlisted crewmen assigned who fly the KC-130 support aircraft that carries the necessary equipment and personnel needed to perform demonstrations at show sites. The 74 enlisted personnel are specialists in all the aviation roles required to support and maintain the Squadron's maintenance, administrative, and public affairs requirements.
